ALLIES INCREASE EUROPEAN AIR ASSAULT

Sabotage By Irish War Workers Feared

BRITAIN CLOSES TRAFFIC TO EIRE AS CRISIS NEARS

BRENNAN DEFENDS NATION

Irish Minister Says His Country Making Allied Contribution

BULLETIN
LONDON, March 13 — A report that leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican army had ordered its members engaged in sabotage plans against the Allied war effort in retaliation for the ban on travel between Britain and Ireland appeared in the London Daily Herald today.

NEW YORK, March 13—The announcement that the British government had decreed that all traffic between the British Isles and Ireland, meaning north Ireland and Eire in the south, must cease as of March 13th until further notice, is in nature more military than diplomatic.

Military preparations on the part of the Allies and Russia for the coming all-out assault are being rushed to completion 24 hours a day in every possible theatre of the great coming combats. But those military preparations are far more embracing than the amassing of large units of the armed forces, their needed armaments, munitions, supplies and replenishments. The military intelligence units must not only continue their work of gathering information from enemy territory, but they must spread a protective web about all the battle preparations that will keep the Axis from knowing where and when the coming offensive blows will fall against them.

Irish Minister Robert Brennan said that Eire is making a greater contribution to the Allied cause by maintaining its neutrality than if it entered the war.

The Irish envoy pointed out that Southern Ireland is sending large quantities of live stock and agriculture products to the British Isles.

"If we were to sever relations with the Axis powers and enter the war," Brennan said, "we would have to divert to defense work many of the men and women (Continued on Page Two)

Cooley Sponsors Bill To End Farm Security Administration Setup

WASHINGTON, March 13—Rep. Cooley (D) N. C., prepared to introduce in the house today a bill to abolish the Farm Security Administration, placing some of its functions and those of direct farm loan agencies under the Farmers Home Corporation.

The bill would doom all "collectivist" resettlement projects. It specifically directs the corporation to liquidate "as expeditiously as possible" all resettlement properties, which Cooley said total two million acres.

At the same time, it would promote individual farm ownership by continuing the tenant loan program and authorizing government insurance of mortgages.

In the latter case the bill sets up preferences for war veterans. The bill would appropriate 50 million dollars for loans, and in addition authorize insurance of private loans, mostly for 90 percent of the purchase price, and in some instances 100 percent, up to another 50 million dollars.

Activating the Farmers Home Corporation, set up in 1937 but never used, the bill would combine under it certain functions of FSA, the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Agency and the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation.

The measure, formulated by a subcommittee, headed by Cooley, which conducted a lengthy probe of FSA, is slated to go to the full committee on agriculture for further study.

Besides being empowered to make tenant purchase loans, the corporation would be authorized to make stock, equipment, debt and subsistence loans to farmers and stockmen, with restrictions of the initial loan to $2,500, and limitation of the aggregate amount outstanding to one borrower at one time to $3,500.

Halting collectivist programs, the bill would cause defense relocation corporations and other similar groups to sell their properties.

Wherever possible, the properties would be subdivided and sold to individuals eligible to tenant loans, which could be made under terms of the bill.

Those which cannot be subdivided practically into family-sized farms—as because of central buildings—would be transferred to appropriate government agencies for disposition of surplus property, or sold for cash or secured credit, with restriction that one-fourth of the purchase price must be paid in cash.

Voicing criticism of the communal plans, Cooley declared: "The distressing thing is not so much the acquisition of this land as the purpose and manner of the acquisition—to create communistic farms and prevent the title from ever going back to private ownership."

POPE PIUS SUBMITS PLEA TO SPARE ROME
LONDON, March 13—A new plea that Rome be spared the ravages of war was left today with the leaders of the belligerent nations by Pope Pius XII.

In one of the most vigorous addresses delivered by the pontiff since the outbreak of hostilities, the holy father urged that the warring nations turn their thoughts toward peace.

He spoke to multitudes gathered before St. Peter's Basilica on the fifth anniversary of his coronation as Vicar of Christ. With the turmoil of battle almost at the approaches of the Eternal City, the Pope declared that to turn Rome itself into a battlefield "would indeed be an inglorious deed."

Predicting a Republican triumph at the polls in November Spangler said "Let us go forward with complete confidence in our destiny."

Rep. Charles Halleck (R) Ind., chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, urged the women to write "their men folks in the armed forces and give them a picture of the home front issues."

"The New Deal," Halleck said, "has utilized every possible propaganda medium to induce millions of service men to vote for the fourth term candidate."

The federation approved unanimously a resolution "deploring efforts of the New Deal" to make "a political football" of the soldiers vote bill.

OIL SHORTAGE SCOUTED
CLEVELAND, March 13—Possibility of a shortage of petroleum supplies in the United States "in any near-term future period" was discounted today by the Standard Oil Company of Ohio in its annual report to stockholders. The report said that additions to the estimated proved oil reserves of the company in 1943 offset more than 99 percent of the record production in the year.

BRICKER CALLS FOR POST-WAR ECONOMY
BOSTON, Mass., March 13—Gov. John W. Bricker, swinging through New England today in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, called for a "dynamic" post-war federal economy and not a static system.

Speaking at the Boston University on "Post-war Problems," Bricker conceded that government regulation will be needed to prevent abuses.

"But there is a vast difference between regulation and regimentation," he added. "Political ownership or management or agriculture, commerce and industry has no place in our free economy."

NEW TRIAL PLEA TO BE MADE BY CLINTON FARMER

Collett's Counsel Expresses Surprise At Death Verdict

DEFENDANT AGAIN CALM

Says He Was 'Victim' In Fayette Murder Hearing

WASHINGTON, C. H., March 13—A new trial plea was to be made today by counsel for James W. Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer sentenced to die for the triple slaying last Thanksgiving Eve of the Elmer McCoy family.

Collett's two-weeks trial was climaxed Friday when he was found guilty by a jury of three women and nine men of the murder of McCoy, his 59-year-old brother-in-law; Mrs. Forrest McCoy, 64, and their 22-year-old daughter, Mildred.

It marked the first time in Ohio any person ever was tried on three first-degree murder charges simultaneously.

The jury's verdict, returned after only two hours and 45 minutes of deliberation, makes the death sentence mandatory. Judge Rankin said at the trial's conclusion, however, he would allow three days to elapse before setting an execution date. Any motion to appeal the verdict must be filed within that time.

Collett's chief counsel, James N. Linton, who declined to say on what grounds the defense would base its motion for a new trial, expressed himself as "greatly surprised" at the verdict.

"It was wholly unexpected," Linton added.

Meanwhile, frail, white-haired Collett regained his customary aplomb that had been shaken from him by the verdict and declared in his Fayette county jail cell yesterday he was praying for delivery from entanglement in "a crime that God in heaven knows I did not commit."

"I was a victim, not a defendant" in the trial, he asserted.

POST WAR TAX SETUP STUDIED BY REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, March 13—A committee of 25 Republican tax experts was ready today to start a study of tax problems with emphasis on a "forward looking" postwar tax setup.

The committee was appointed by House Minority Leader Martin who declared that the present federal tax system is "hopelessly impossible as a basis for a postwar tax program."

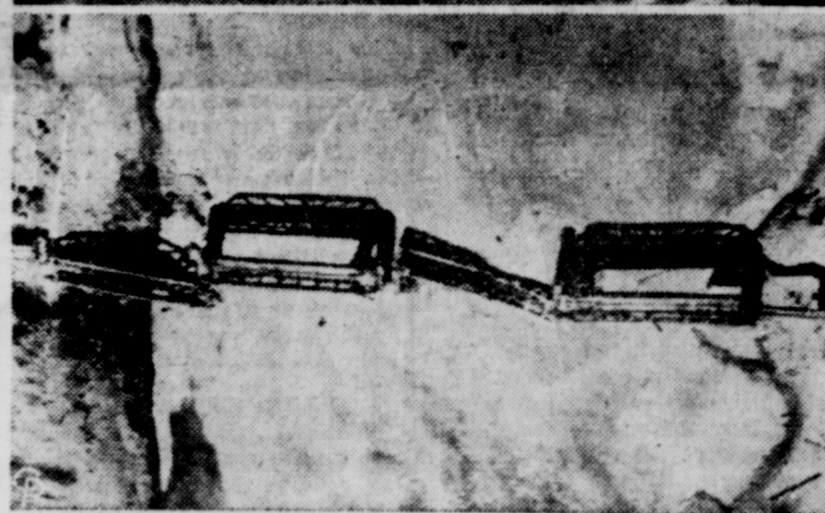

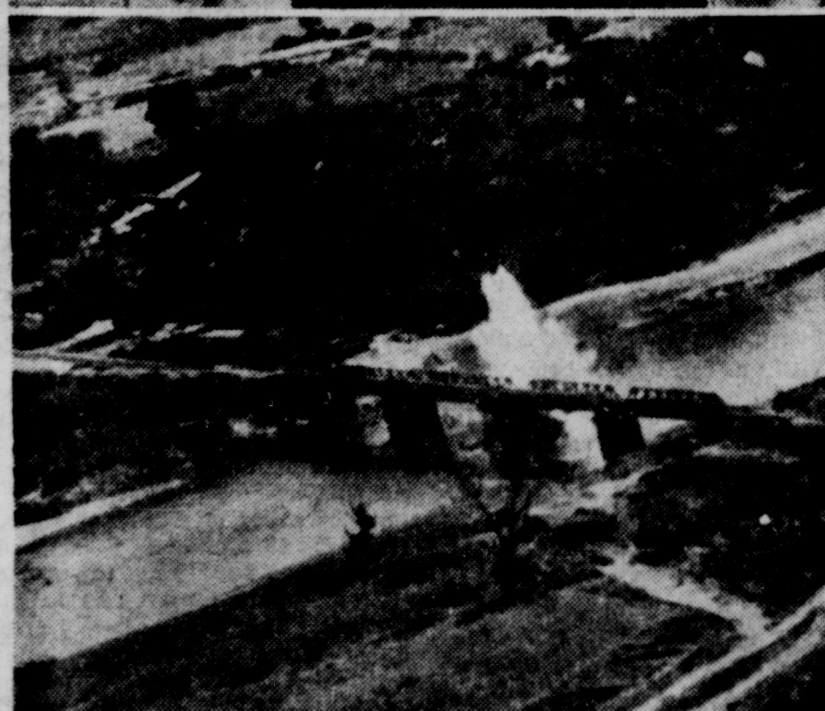

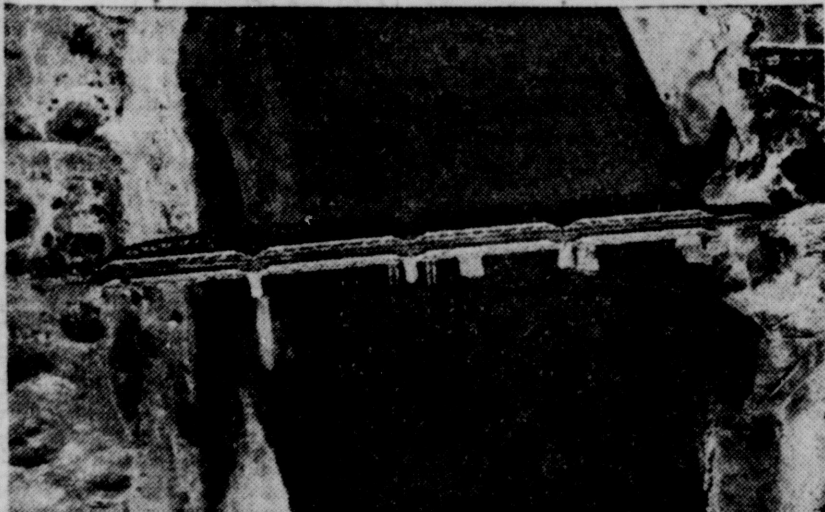

Martin said the committee, headed by Rep. Reed (R) N. Y., will make a thorough research of the tax field and prepare recommendations for the benefit of the GOP members of congress.

Emphasizing that a "sound and prosperous postwar national economy depends upon a wise tax policy," Martin said, this policy must be carefully considered and congress must be prepared to have it go into effect immediately with the advent of peace, "which will in all probability come during the life of the congress that will be selected next November."

The present program, Martin said, is wholly geared to the urgent necessity of a wartime economy and has for years been in need of a thorough overhauling, including drastic simplification and a return to sound tax principles.

DESTROYER LAUNCHED
KEARNEY, N. J., March 13—The heavyweight destroyer Charles A. Sperry, named for the late Rear Admiral Sperry, commander of the United States fleet on half of its around-the-world cruise of 1907-1909, was launched today at U. S. Steel's federal shipyard.

YANKS BLAST JAP BURMA BRIDGE

RECONQUEST OF BURMA depends largely on the disruption of Jap lines of supply, and American airmen are seeing to it that this strategy is carried out. PORTSMOUTH PUPILS RETURN TO CLASSES

PORTSMOUTH, March 13—Striking students of Portsmouth high school today returned to their classes, after a three-day walkout from their classes as a move to obtain for principal Olin B. Smith, a hearing before the board of education.

Student leaders, who voted Saturday to call off the strike, said they felt they had accomplished their purpose in calling attention to the public necessity for an inquiry into conditions at the school and intimated they had received satisfactory promises from individual members of the board.

The board recently voted not to rehire Smith. Smith charged he was refused a hearing by the board. The students, approximately 1,300, walked out last Wednesday.

BARKLEY SAYS FIGHT WITH PRESIDENT ENDED

WASHINGTON, March 13—Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley emerged smiling today from his first meeting with President Roosevelt in recent weeks, indicating that no harsh feelings remained from his recent dramatic revolt against the President's tax veto message.

It was the Kentucky senator's first meeting with Mr. Roosevelt since he tendered his resignation as senate majority leader in protest over the President's veto and was unanimously reelected by the senate Democrats.

"You wouldn't have known there had ever been any incident," Barkley smiled as he left the White House.

ONE FOURTH OF WAR FUND GOAL ALREADY RAISED

Pickaway county Red Cross War Fund is progressing slowly toward its goal of $24,300, with but $6,100 in subscriptions received through Saturday, according to report of Barton Deming and Harley Colwell, co-chairmen of the county set-up. While industries in the city and county are coming across with fine contributions, many people of the community are giving just one dollar as in the past, Deming disclosed.

Perry township, under Mrs. Roscoe Shipley and Mrs. Herbert E. Louis, has almost completed its part in the drive with $725 turned in. Ashville, under the Rev. H. D. Fudge, is doing splendid work at boosting its total to a high level.

One small child in "Beantown" set an example that would be a worthwhile pattern for Circleville and Pickaway county folk to follow: Shaking out 58 cents from a piggy bank, he said, "Been saving this for my big brother."

One thing that is hurting Pickaway county's total is the solicitations of contributions in defense plants in Columbus from workers living in this community, it was revealed.

TWO PERISH IN FIRE

SANDUSKY, O., March 13—Mrs. Vincent Dobert, 26, and her four-year-old daughter, Pollyanna, died today in a Sandusky hospital of burns received when a fire swept their apartment shortly after midnight. Fire Chief Wilson McLaughlin said he believed the fire started from a lighted cigarette.

Dimond Sees Cattle Boom For Alaska

Alcan Highway Will Be Of Little Value As Market Outlet

WASHINGTON, March 13—Congressional Delegate Anthony J. Dimond of Alaska envisaged today a future great cattle industry for his territory—but declared the 115 million dollar Alcan highway will be "of no immediate consequence as a market outlet."

The route, he declared, is wrongly located because Alaska's economy is tied up with the United States and Canadian west coasts.

Some high value goods, as furs and gold, may be hauled over the highway, but in general Alaska products, to compete in world markets, and produced with high living and labor costs, must go by lower-cost water-borne transportation, Dimond said.

Dimond believes, however, should the 477 miles of narrow, unsurfaced road from Edmonton, Alberta, to Dawson Creek, where (Continued on Page Two)

37 ACCEPTED BY ARMY AND NAVY

Draft Board Announces List Of Pickaway Selectees

A total of 37 Pickaway county men who recently took draft physicals have been accepted for army and navy service, draft board officials announced today. Circleville men on the list are Ernest S. Minor, Gerald Noble, Walter T. Eitel, Robert F. Bower, Harlow W. Aldridge, John J. Sefang, and Walter R. Mettler.

Others accepted include: William F. Cupp, Robert E. Currier, Kelley L. West, Columbus; Kenneth E. Beach, John W. Myers, Harry A. Rife, Ashville; Harold Willard Evans, Washington C. H.; Amos J. Van Fossen, Tarleton; Forrest L. Hunt, Lancaster; Charles L. Puckett, Darby; Oscar W. Clements, Chillicothe; Charles R. Gerhardt, Atlanta.

The Army accepted for Limited Service the following: Ned H. Dresbach, Verl Keaton, Berlin Noble, Circleville; William A. Duval, Ashville; Harry A. Miller, Grove City; Harold T. Dumm, Dayton; Jack E. Clark, Williamsport.

The Navy accepted the following: Virgil Keaton, Carl A. Purcell, Carmon O. Allen, John W. Parrett, Franklin M. Gitt, Circleville; James F. Toole, Herman Crosby, Ashville; Wilber L. Foust, Belle Center; Elvin H. Layton, Orient; Joe F. Satchell, New Holland.

COMMITTEE ASKS END OF CURB ON MAGNESIUM

WASHINGTON, March 13—The senate Truman committee urged the War Production Board today to abandon its order restricting magnesium to military and essential civilian use in order to popularize the "miracle metal" and pave the way for vast postwar utilization.

In a report trading the frantic efforts of the government to overcome Germany's advantage in production of magnesium—now used chiefly in aircraft building—the committee said more than 500 million dollars has been spent.

Starting almost from scratch, the production of magnesium by private and government-owned plants will reach an estimated 531 million pounds in 1944 as against requirements of 485 million pounds.

The committee said it was especially interested in preserving the war-built industry for postwar use. Magnesium, the committee said, is the lightest commercial metal.

POLITICIAN DIES

CLEVELAND, March 13—The career of one of Cleveland's most colorful political figures was ended today in the death of Edwin Daniel Barry who succumbed to a heart attack at his Cleveland home. Barry, 73, a Republican, was in Cleveland political life for 42 years.

WEST GERMANY POUNDED AGAIN BY RAF PLANES

Allied Craft Intent On Sapping Hitler's Defenses

INVASION MOVE EXPECTED

Russia Scene Of Heavy Ground Fighting; Nazis Hurlled Back

By International News Service.
The great Allied aerial offensive was under way again today in Europe, with powerful formations of bombers and fighters churning out over the English channel in the wake of a Mosquito assault on western Germany during the night.

Beginning at dawn, Allied aircraft were sighted over the English side of the straits of Dover, one formation after another heading toward the bomb-rocked continent over which Adolf Hitler is fast losing his grip. There was no immediate indication of targets in today's resumption of the day-and-night offensive.

In Russia, the Red army pushed its giant Ukraine offensive, rolling through more than 200 more towns and villages in its drive toward Romania and deeper into old Poland.

There was indications, battle-front dispatches said, that the entire German line, from the upper Ukraine to the mouth of the Dnieper—a distance of some 400 miles—would collapse before the unending pressure of Soviet troops.

In the lower Ukraine, Russian troops that blasted their way across the Ingul river, in the face of powerful Nazi opposition, pushed steadily ahead 15 miles toward the southern Bug river, as other Red units to the northwest severed the Proskurov-Gusynin escape railroad with capture of Gayvorin.

In some sectors, according to the Communist party newspaper, Prayda, the Nazi retreat was so precipitous that the enemy was abandoning food and valuable equipment in its frantic effort to get away from the rampant Russians.

The Reds were within 55 miles of Romania at Gayvorin, and Romania's satellite government, long subservient to Adolf Hitler, was reported trying to find a way out of the war, with top Royalist diplomats in Ankara sounding out sentiments among American, British and Russian diplomats.

Bad weather continued to hamper operations in Italy, where intermittent rains limited ground activity to patrol clashes, several of which were fought.

Fifth army artillery units, however, sprayed German positions in the Anzio beachhead area below Rome, hitting the enemy targets with "good effect."

From London came a newspaper report, carried by the Daily Herald, that leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican Army had put into operation plans to retard the Allied war effort through IRA Members working in British war industries.

The reported IRA plot came in the wake of British action suspending all travel between Britain and both Eire and Ulster (Northern Ireland) after the Eire government flatly refused a U. S. request that Axis diplomats be ousted.

In the Southwest Pacific, the war was bad news again for the Japs. The vital enemy base at Wewak, on New Guinea, since the virtual neutralization of Rabaul, the main Jap fortress in that area, was mercilessly hammered by more than 100 heavy and medium bombers, escorted by fighters, which ripped to shreds the enemy interceptors that tried to halt the assault.

Collett's Counsel Expresses Surprise At Death Verdict

DEFENDANT AGAIN CALM

Says He Was 'Victim' In Fayette Murder Hearing

WASHINGTON, C. H., March 13—A new trial plea was to be made today by counsel for James W. Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer sentenced to die for the triple slaying last Thanksgiving Eve of the Elmer McCoy family.

Collett's two-weeks trial was climaxed Friday when he was found guilty by a jury of three women and nine men of the murder of McCoy, his 59-year-old brother-in-law; Mrs. Forrest McCoy, 64, and their 22-year-old daughter, Mildred.

COMMITTEE ASKS END OF CURB ON MAGNESIUM

WASHINGTON, March 13—The senate Truman committee urged today the War Production Board to abandon its order restricting magnesium to military and essential civilian use in order to popularize the "miracle metal" and pave the way for vast postwar utilization.

In a report trading the frantic efforts of the government to overcome Germany's advantage in production of magnesium—now used chiefly in aircraft building—the committee said more than 500 million dollars has been spent.

Starting almost from scratch, the production of magnesium by private and government-owned plants will reach an estimated 531 million pounds in 1944 as against requirements of 485 million pounds.

The committee said it was especially interested in preserving the war-built industry for postwar use. Magnesium, the committee said, is the lightest commercial metal.

WEST GERMANY POUNDED AGAIN BY RAF PLANES

Allied Craft Intent On Sapping Hitler's Defenses

INVASION MOVE EXPECTED

Russia Scene Of Heavy Ground Fighting; Nazis Hurling Back

By International News Service
The great Allied aerial offensive was under way again today in Europe, with powerful formations of bombers and fighters churning out over the English channel in the wake of a Mosquito assault on western Germany during the night.

Beginning at dawn, Allied aircraft were sighted over the English side of the straits of Dover, one formation after another heading toward the bomb-rocked continent over which Adolf Hitler is fast losing his grip. There was no immediate indication of targets in today's resumption of the day-and-night offensive.

In Russia, the Red army pushed its giant Ukraine offensive, rolling through more than 200 more towns and villages in its drive toward Romania and deeper into old Poland.

There was indications, battle-front dispatches said, that the entire German line, from the upper Ukraine to the mouth of the Dnieper—a distance of some 400 miles—would collapse before the unending pressure of Soviet troops.

In the lower Ukraine, Russian troops that blasted their way across the Ingul river, in the face of powerful Nazi opposition, pushed steadily ahead 15 miles toward the southern Bug river, as other Red units to the northwest severed the Proskurov-Gusiatin escape railroad with capture of Gayvorin.

In some sectors, according to the Communist party newspaper, Pravda, the Nazi retreat was so precipitous that the enemy was abandoning food and valuable equipment in its frantic effort to get away from the rampant Russians.

The Reds were within 55 miles of Romania at Gayvorin, and Romania's satellite government, long subservient to Adolf Hitler, was reported trying to find a way out of the war, with top Royalist diplomats in Ankara sounding out sentiments among American, British and Russian diplomats.

Bad weather continued to hamper operations in Italy, where intermittent rains limited ground activity to patrol clashes, several of which were fought.

Fifth army artillery units, however, sprayed German positions in the Anzio beachhead area below Rome, hitting the enemy targets with "good effect."

From London came a newspaper report, carried by the Daily Herald, that leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican Army had put into operation plans to retard the Allied war effort through IRA Members working in British war industries.

The reported IRA plot came in the wake of British action suspending all travel between Britain and both Eire and Ulster (Northern Ireland) after the Eire government flatly refused a U. S. request that Axis diplomats be ousted.

In the Southwest Pacific, the war was bad news again for the Japs. The vital enemy base at Wewak, on New Guinea, since the virtual neutralization of Rabaul, the main Jap fortress in that area, was mercilessly hammered by more than 100 heavy and medium bombers, escorted by fighters, which ripped to shreds the enemy interceptors that tried to halt the assault.

were shot down for sure, and six more probably were destroyed.

On both Los Negros Island in the Admiralty group, and on the Williams peninsula of New Guinea, Yank forces consolidated their newly-won positions.

Deep in the jungle of northern Burma, American and Chinese troops advanced two miles from Walaumbum against entrapped Japanese, while other Allied troops in the Arakan area of Burma gained strong positions.

The strategic air strip seized from the Japanese on Los Negros island was renamed "Wainwright field" in honor of the Yank commander who was captured in the Philippines when Bataan and Corregidor fell.

The men who wrested the air strip, formerly known as Momote, from the Japs at one time were under command of Lieut. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, the officer who remained in charge of American and Filipino forces at Bataan when Gen. Douglas MacArthur was assigned to Australia.

Brig. Gen. William Chase, of El Paso, Tex., and Providence, R. I., commander of the American cavalry forces which captured the important airfield last week, formally dedicated the new Allied air strip.

Wainwright field, only a week after its occupation, is already being used by Royal Australian fighters and United States planes which are keeping a ceaseless patrol over the scene of the newest landing in the southwest Pacific.

SOLDIER VOTE BILL TO FACE FIGHT IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 13—The senate opens debate today on the compromise soldiers' vote bill with approval expected after bitter debate but with a strong possibility that President Roosevelt will veto the measure.

A senate canvass by party leaders indicated a large majority of Republicans and perhaps half the Democrats will support the compromise, although its approval will be strongly fought by Sens. Green (D) R. I., and Lucas (D) Ill., co-authors of the original federal ballot bill.

Sen. Connally (D) Texas, planned to lead the fight for adoption of the compromise worked out by a joint senate-house conference committee, which leans heavily to emphasis on state absentee voting laws.

"I think the senate will approve it," Connally said. "I expect two-thirds of the senate to support it." Green contended that odds favor approval of the measure because, he said, "there is a tendency on the part of members to approve a conference report so they will be done with a bill."

"They may not be done with this bill," he added. "I hope the President vetoes it."

The measure provides:

A federal ballot for overseas men and women provided the governor of their state certifies that the state has made no provision for their voting, and provided they have applied for a state ballot before Sept. 1 and have not received it by Oct. 1.

For the year ending June 30, 1943, United States railroads increased the number of women workers on their payrolls by 54,900, to 94,500, or an increase of 138.6 percent.

SERVICES FOR LLOYD WILL BE HELD HERE

Sidney Wilson Lloyd, 55, brother-in-law of Fred C. Clark of South Court street, died Sunday at 7:15 a. m., at his home, 17519 Friers avenue, Lakewood, Ohio, after an illness of five weeks of a heart ailment. For many years Mr. Lloyd was associated with the Sears-Roebuck Co., as salesman and manager. He was a member of the Masonic order.

Mr. Lloyd was married June 25, 1911, in Columbus to Edna Marie Clark, who survives.

Born May 24, 1888, in Columbus, he was the son of Edward D. and Elizabeth Pugh Lloyd. He had lived in Cleveland and Lakewood for the last 11 years.

In addition to Mrs. Lloyd he leaves two brothers, Walter Lloyd of San Francisco, Cal., and Chester A. Lloyd, Perio, Ill.; two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Amery and Mrs. Mabel Teitze, Columbus.

Funeral services will be Wednesday at 3 p. m., in the Albaugh chapel, Circleville, with the Rev. Clarence Swearingen of the First Methodist church officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery, Columbus. Friends of the family may call at the chapel Tuesday evening.

Dimond Sees Cattle Boom For Alaska

The Alcan highway begins, be improved, it will be a tremendous spur to the "tourist trade" which Alaskans regard as important.

Dimond said he thinks the Alcan Highway will be maintained in peacetime for military reasons even if commercial traffic fails to justify it.

Of immediate prospects for developments in Alaskan agriculture, Dimond said many service men now in Alaska expect to return there after they don civilian clothes, and asserted there will be a field for them at once in food growing.

"Agricultural production could be expanded six-fold just to supply food needs of the territory itself," he said.

In his long-range view, Dimond sees an eventual cattle and sheep industry accompanied by a parallel growth in meat packing.

REV. HARTMAN DIES AT OTTERBEIN HOME

The Rev. Minnie Agnes Worstell Hartman, wife of the Rev. G. K. Hartman, sister of Mrs. Clara DeLong, Mrs. Nettie Brewer and Wilbur Worstell of Circleville, died at her home in Otterbein, California, March 3, according to word received by her relatives. She had been ill for several weeks.

The Rev. Mrs. Hartman was widely known in central Ohio, where she served as an ordained minister of the United Brethren denomination. She also served churches in Montana and Oregon for 27 years prior to her retirement. For five years she was president of the Oregon conference of the Woman's Missionary Alliance and since taking up her residence in Otterbein in 1942, had been an active member of the Bell Memorial church in that city.

The body was brought to Ohio for interment.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 13 —C. Harold Floyd, 64, wealthy New York and Pittsfield socialite, lost his life today while trying to find his 13-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, as smoke and flames ravaged his palatial Pittsfield home.

Floyd's body was found in the daughter's bedroom by firemen, and Elizabeth was found unconscious in the library. Mrs. Floyd and a son, Edward, 11, were overcome by smoke and were rescued by firemen.

Awakened by the flames, Floyd apparently went to his daughter's room to rouse her when he was felled. The daughter, however, had been awakened also and had gone to the library to call firemen, police reported.

Persistence Plus!

The matter of a letter—or rather, the lack of one—was a vivid lesson in the scope of Red Cross Home Service to a lonely Alabama soldier stationed in Syria, and to his father in far-off Montana. The boy had heard nothing from his father for many weeks when, disconsolate, he took his anxious fears to his field director. The field director wrote to the boy's hometown Red Cross chapter for information. In several weeks there was a letter from the father to bring a grin to the lanky lad and a boost to his flagging fighter morale.

The father wrote: "If you live through this war and come home, I'm going to lick the daylight out of you. Don't ever set one of these Red Cross women on me again! I'm on a sheep ranch in Montana, 100 miles from nowhere. This Red Cross woman came 175 miles to find me. She rode 50; her car broke down, and so she hitchhiked. She walked the last eight. She sat me down on this rock and said, 'Now write, darn you, write.' And by gosh, here I am writing."

Two million, five hundred thousand servicemen have been given personal aid by Red Cross Home Service via chapters since March 1, 1943.

MILK PRICES UNCHANGED

COLUMBUS, March 13—Dealers buying prices for fluid milk in early March in the state's 19 marketing areas showed little change from a month ago, the Ohio Co-operative Dairy Reporting Service said today. In the Lima area the price of all classes of milk was increased from $3.10 to $3.20 effective February 1. A five-cent increase in the Springfield market was reported effective February 1, hiking the price of Class I and III milk to $3.35.

POPE HITS NAZIS

BASLE, Switzerland—Pope Pius XII has written a letter to the Bishop of Mainz, Germany, expressing the wish that German Catholics "may remain immune" to Nazi doctrines, according to the Swiss newspaper Neue Zuercher Nachrichten. The Pope spoke of "godless doctrines they are being solicited to embrace" but expressed confidence in the courage of German Catholics to "stand by the faith."

SPONGES INFECTED

NASSAU, Bahamas—The marine plague that destroyed sponging beds in the Bahamas in 1938 apparently has spread to beds of cultivated sponges at Andros Island, the Marine Board reports. Prior to 1938 the sponge industry supported one-eighth of the Bahamas population. The beds were closed to fishing at that time in the hope the industry could be revived in later years.

NO JUDGE NEEDED

WEST HAVERSTRAW, N. Y.—Less than a year after the retirement of West Haverstraw's one-man police force, the trustees of West Haverstraw voted to discontinue the office of the village police judge. The move will save $600 a year. Village police cases are handled by the New York State Police, who try them in the county courts.

SAVE TRACTOR RUBBER

CHICAGO—Rubber is conserved and food production increased by a new method of filling farm tractor tires with water, the Chicago Motor Club reported this week. Tires are filled with a maximum volume of liquid weight and still maintain an air cushion. At the same time the water protects the tire against body failure.

THE JAPS PREPARE

LONDON—Japanese residents of Berlin have been organized to take part in air raid defense work, according to the Tokyo radio. They will relate their experiences in articles to be published in Japan, the idea being to train the populations of the principal Japanese cities in modern defense methods.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and a nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

ESCAPES BURNING OIL

OAKLAND, Cal.—Marine Private John Hannon of Newark, N. J., can thank his lucky stars that it was no light blast that blew him from a Navy vessel in the Solomons. Recovering in a Naval Hospital near Oakland, Hannon was thrown clear of 40 feet of burning oil surrounding his ship after a Jap torpedo bomber had scored a direct hit.

RED CROSS CORNER

Persistence Plus!

The matter of a letter—or rather, the lack of one—was a vivid lesson in the scope of Red Cross Home Service to a lonely Alabama soldier stationed in Syria, and to his father in far-off Montana. The boy had heard nothing from his father for many weeks when, disconsolate, he took his anxious fears to his field director. The field director wrote to the boy's hometown Red Cross chapter for information. In several weeks there was a letter from the father to bring a grin to the lanky lad and a boost to his flagging fighter morale.

The father wrote: "If you live through this war and come home, I'm going to lick the daylight out of you. Don't ever set one of these Red Cross women on me again! I'm on a sheep ranch in Montana, 100 miles from nowhere. This Red Cross woman came 175 miles to find me. She rode 50; her car broke down, and so she hitchhiked. She walked the last eight. She sat me down on this rock and said, 'Now write, darn you, write.' And by gosh, here I am writing."

Two million, five hundred thousand servicemen have been given personal aid by Red Cross Home Service via chapters since March 1, 1943.

MILK PRICES UNCHANGED

COLUMBUS, March 13—Dealers buying prices for fluid milk in early March in the state's 19 marketing areas showed little change from a month ago, the Ohio Co-operative Dairy Reporting Service said today. In the Lima area the price of all classes of milk was increased from $3.10 to $3.20 effective February 1. A five-cent increase in the Springfield market was reported effective February 1, hiking the price of Class I and III milk to $3.35.

ASKS ABRIGATION OF 'UNEQUAL TREATIES'

NEW YORK, March 13—The world had a plea today from Madame Sun Yat-Sen, wife of the late first president of China, for abrogation of all "unequal treaties" between her homeland and other nations.

Mme. Sun, sister of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, in an address radioed to a gathering of 4,000 in the Metropolitan Opera House in commemoration of the 19th anniversary of the death of her husband, founder of the Chinese Republic, declared China "must and will shake off every form of subservience and imposed dependence."

We promise

At the top of every War Bond you buy are these words:

"The United States promises to pay..."

Those may not sound like such brave words. But actually they are the hope of the world!

THEY ARE a promise by the country to its citizens, but also a promise by the citizens to the country and to the people of the world; a promise that obligations recognized and accepted will be paid in full.

The millions of us who buy those Bonds, do proudly and solemnly promise:

... that partial victory shall not breed the kind of weakening over-confidence which can rob us of complete victory;

... that unity shall rise above all squabbles, and differences;

... that this war shall be fought through to a finish with all that we have and all that we are;

... that the sacrifices of today, and the larger sacrifices of tomorrow, shall be accepted willingly, in the humble knowledge that they are small when set beside the sacrifices of our men who are fighting;

... that we will not turn our backs on the rest of the world after victory is won; but will reach out the hand of friendship, and assume our proper share of responsibility in seeing that freedom, equality, and orderly justice become possible for all people, everywhere;

... that neither our own fighting men nor any of our allies shall be let down in any way whatsoever now, or in the hard-fighting days to come, or in the peace that will follow victory;

... that we, the people, will dig into our pockets, purses, and savings to make the success of the War Bond program a symbol of our determination.

These things we subscribe to. These things we believe in. These things we promise.

THE UNFAIR TWIST

A commentator remarked that a certain army hospital treated an officer's dog and it lived. It refused a bed to the young wife of an enlisted man, would not even send an ambulance, she could not get to another hospital, and died. The implication was that the hospital chose between the officer's dog and a private's wife.

The facts might have been that an officer asked a doctor friend whether he could do anything for his pup. The doctor might say he was no vet, but if the friend would bring the dog around when he wasn't busy he'd give him a look. It might not be in the regulation book, but a dose and a bandage might do no harm.

The maternity ward may have been full—someone sicker than expected had to be kept longer; the young wife's time may have come sooner than schedule. There may have been no empty bed at the moment, no ambulance then on hand. Something went wrong with what should have been a normal birth. Things like this do sometimes happen, to the regret of all, with no fault of anyone concerned. Army hospitals have the reputation of taking very good care of enlisted men and their families. If there was fault or carelessness in this case, doubtless the Army will take very good care not to let it be repeated.

Stating facts as facts is the right and duty of the reporter. Giving them an unfair twist is different. It spreads unjustified fears.

THE GERMAN PROBLEM

WAR victory is at best a long, slow procedure, but there is encouragement for the Allies in signs that the German people are losing confidence. They are a rather tough nation, and the people as well as the fighters have shown that they can "take it." Yet the doses grow steadily harder to take and the aura of victory and dominion is gone. The civilians, like the troops, fight on doggedly without their normal wartime lift of spirit.

Some observers say German resistance might be cracked now if they were given any reason to hope for mercy.

It would be a mistake, however, to encourage hope for easy terms, or to impose stiff terms and then relax them. Realistic people know too well the tragedy that developed from letting punishment go by default after the last war.

Who says the war isn't broadening? Never before did so many American girls receive messages from their boy friends in Hawaiian and the languages of the other out-of-the-way places in which Americans are fighting.

Organized labor, with all its faults, is doing a great war job.

Inside WASHINGTON

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Pay no attention to that bluster in the March wind. Spring is here—in Washington.

Get into a car. Your A sticker will take you down to where the Speedway used to be. And look the budding cherry trees over. They have forgotten there's a war and are as eager to bloom as if they had never been called Japanese.

You'll probably need a guide to lead you along the new roads, and help you defy the big signs that shout, just as you are about to turn in "Do Not Enter Here."

I used up a month's allotment of gas the other day trying to get near to Temporary L. Temporary L is one of those strange Navy department buildings, squatting behind the Lincoln Memorial. I zipped around the memorial thinking as America had built in honor of the Great Emancipator, when suddenly I realized I was going away from my destination—that elusive Temporary L.

Around and around the Memorial I went. And got no closer to where I wanted to go. Then I attacked the problem from another angle. I rode far down into Southwest—or is it Southeast?—and crept up on Temporary L from another direction. No luck! The roads around about had no exit. No outlet. They were as full of circumlocutions as Washington is full of red tape. So I gave the idea up, rode back to the Reflecting Pool and sat there enjoying the view until a policeman drove me and my car away.

Washington, or rather Potomac Park, is like that now. It gets you nowhere. That once friendly area below the White House where people used to take fried chicken and hard-boiled eggs and the neighbor's children out for picnics on Saturday afternoons in summer, is now a maze of roads and byways leading to places you haven't the slightest interest in finding.

The road I most want to come upon some day is that one that spun out from the other side of the Arlington bridge. It was labeled Mt. Vernon highway. It took you past the dogwood and redwood and the river down to where George Washington used to live. As far as I knew they've got Mt. Vernon sucked away in the Potomac

ROBERTS TO BE CANDIDATE

WASHINGTON—Handsome John Hamilton, ex-GOP national committee chairman, now chief political adviser of Pennsylvania's Joe Pew, had a talk recently with Congresswoman Clare Luce and Elliott Janeway, of Time and Fortune magazine, about the all-important question which absorbs all Republicans—whom to select to defeat FDR.

"A day or two before the Republican convention," said Hamilton, "my law partner (George Wharton Pepper, former U.S. senator from Pennsylvania) will call Justice Owen Roberts and ask him to say that his statement to the effect that we would have to sacrifice some of our sovereignty after the war to an international police force was an inadvertence which he did not really mean. After this assurance, Justice Roberts will be the Republican nominee for president."

Mrs. Luce, however, did not agree with John. She maintained: "The only man to run against the commander-in-chief is a man who can be classified in the public mind as a commander, namely Douglas MacArthur."

However, Elliott Janeway went over to the bookshelf, took down Sandburg's "Life of Lincoln," and turned to the page where a New York editor is informed of Lincoln's nomination.

"Who is Lincoln?" the editor asked. That's the kind of candidate we've got to have," said Janeway. "Someone who isn't known—someone with no flaws or blemishes they can pick holes in."

All of which, according to the Democrats, is an illustration of how the Republicans are frantically fumbling for a candidate.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S NOSE

Nobody seems to know who wrote it, but here is the jingle which spread like wildfire after publication of Mrs. Roosevelt's picture rubbing noses with a native Maori woman in New Zealand.

"A poor benighted heathen, with a jungle for a home,

Who'd think my fame would spread afar,
to lands across the foam?

I wasn't very handsome, I was not very bright;

But now they come to see my nose, the island's greatest sight.

My nose was once a simple nose, a little flat and bent.

But now my nose is not a nose, it is a monument.

So, tourists, take your place in line and, for a modest fee,

Rub the nose that rubbed the nose of Mrs. Franklin D.

A thought has just occurred to me which I find rather stunning;
Since my nose rubbed the Roosevelt nose, will it too keep on running?"

ANZIO ORDANCE

Although the problem of supply on the Anzio beachhead has been emphasized, another factor which the public doesn't realize is the problem of ordnance.

Inside that slender foothold in Italy, there must be not only kitchens and temporary hospitals but, even more important, ammunition dumps and repair shops. This is the job of ordnance. A tank is no good unless it is kept in repair and it is the job of ordnance not only to build tanks, but (Continued on Page Eight)

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"You look like a bright boy," said Argus. "Maybe you can answer a few questions." The boy looked at him vacantly.

"First instance?" he mumbled through protruding front teeth. "First instance, was the hall of the penthouse painted recently?"

"Yes. Monday morning. Miss Verne wanted it done."

"Good. Next: Did you see a red-headed man go up to Miss Verne's apartment, yesterday?"

"Nope."

"How about a man with a red beard?" Ellen quipped jokingly. "Yes," said the boy. "But he didn't go to the penthouse."

"No? Where did he go?" Argus asked eagerly. "Don't remember. I just know it wasn't the penthouse."

"Can you describe him?" "Waal, he wore glasses and had his coat pulled up, but I seen his beard."

"Had you ever seen him before?" "Nope."

"Was he carrying anything? A parcel or a suitcase?" "Yes. He had a suitcase. I started to help him, but he didn't want any."

"Did you see him come out again?" "Nope."

"What time was that?" "Around six. I just came on duty."

"Last night?" Argus asked. "Yes."

"Did you talk to him?" "Nope."

"Can you tell me anything else about him?" "Yes. He limped."

"Argus looked at Ellen and raised his brows. "Was he tall or short?" the detective asked.

"The elevator boy turned to look at Argus. 'Like you,' he said. 'Tall,' said Ellen.

"Waal—so-so," said the boy. "Did you take anyone up to Miss Verne's apartment yesterday?" "Miss Verne."

"Anyone besides her?" "Nope."

"What time did she return home?" "Just before midnight."

"Alone?" "Yes. She was sore about something."

The car was on the main floor now. The boy opened the door. Some people were waiting to get in. They stood back to let Argus and Ellen step off the car.

Argus smiled. "We're not getting off," he said. "We like it here."

The people looked uncertain. A woman in the party shrugged. They got on. The elevator started up. Ellen and Argus kept silent until the boy let the other passengers off on seven and started down again.

"Now, where were we?" Argus asked. "Oh, yes! Do you know a Mr. Sturgis, a friend of Miss Verne's, by sight?"

"Yes."

"Did you see him on Monday?" "Nope."

"Mr. William Carstairs, Sr. lives in this building, doesn't he?" "Yes."

"What floor?" "Nope."

"Sixth."

"What time did he come in on Monday?"

"Late."

"How late?" Argus persisted. "Two, I guess."

"And his son, did you see him?" The boy gave him a peculiar look.

"Nope, not since he went out at 6:30—Monday."

"Keep this little talk to yourself," he said. "Understand, son?"

"O.K."

"About the man with the beard. Didn't it look to you as if he were trying to disguise himself—beard—glasses and all?"

"Nope. My grandfather had a beard and wore glasses."

"Not a red beard, surely," put in Ellen.

"It turned gray," said the boy. "My!" said Ellen. "How did your grandmother like it?"

"Never said."

"Was Miss Verne home over the week end?" Argus asked.

"Nope."

"Was she usually away over the week end?" "Yes."

"Ever say where she was going or where she'd been?" "Nope."

Argus and Ellen stepped off the elevator. "You're from Vermont, aren't you?" the detective asked over his shoulder.

The boy looked at him in astonishment. "Yes," he said. "How do you know?"

Argus smiled. "I just guessed."

When they were on the street, Ellen asked: "Where do we go from here?"

"A friend of mine, who lives on the next block, has a laboratory where he carries on experiments. It's sort of a hobby with him. I figured we might drop over and have him take a look at the red hair I found and see what he can tell me about it."

"You think it might have some connection with the bearded man the elevator boy took up Monday night?"

"Maybe."

What about that gun in the air-conditioning machine? Are you going to tell the police about it?" Ellen asked.

"Presently. But for the time being, don't mention it to anyone. We mustn't let the murderer know we've found it," he cautioned.

"Argus, you said Syria was murdered by telephone—what did you mean?"

"It's quite technical, honey. Think you could understand it?" Ellen pushed him.

"You remember there was a wire leading to the air-conditioning machine from the bell box of the phone?"

"Yes," said Ellen.

"Well, I imagine if I were to take that bell box apart, I'd find the wire connected with the phone wire itself, in such a way that the ringing of the phone bell or the lifting of the receiver completed an electrical circuit which started up the air-conditioner."

"So what?" asked Ellen.

"So the first couple of revolutions of the fan blower made the cord tied to the trigger would be drawn taut and then—" Argus clapped both hands together loudly to signify an explosion.

"Then all anyone would have to do would be to telephone Syria or wait for her to pick up the receiver and she'd be shot."

"That's the way it looks," Argus agreed. "Come to think of it, it would have to be fixed so that the lifting of the receiver does the trick, not the ringing of the bell."

"Say," said Ellen. "Bill Carstairs' phoning her in the Penguin Club last night becomes more significant."

"This is it," said Argus, stopping in front of a renovated brownstone building. "I hope he's home."

The detective pressed the bell with a gloved thumb. A metallic clicking sound rewarded his effort. He pushed open the heavy front door. A white-haired man poked his head out of a rear apartment.

"Who is it?" he asked in a high-pitched voice.

"Hello, Hanks. It's Argus Steele and friend."

"Argus! I haven't see you in years. Why do you desert your old friends?"

"This is Miss Curtis, Mr. Hanks."

"Glad to meet you, my dear," the elderly man said. "Come in, won't you?"

"I was afraid we might wake you up at this hour," Argus said.

"No. I'm conducting a little experiment. . . . His voice trailed on as he led them into a large, high-ceilinged room filled with tubes and glass containers."

"I use this as my workshop," Hanks explained. "My living quarters are in the back. I don't have much in the house but beer."

"Don't bother," said Ellen. "It's no bother," said Hanks.

"Don't let us disturb you, Hanks. I just dropped in to have you take a look at something for me—" and Argus brought up the subject of the red hair. Hanks g. up, fussed with some oblong pieces of glass slides. He placed the hair between them and studied it through a microscope. Finally he peered at them over the rims of his glasses.

Argus asked, "Can you tell whether it was used in a false beard?"

"I'll try to tell you in a minute," said Hanks, resuming his examination. . . . Soon he announced, "It's real human hair and definitely belonged to a xanthous person, not mucilaginous traces at the root suggests its use in a wig. He looked up with a smile of accomplishment."

"Many thanks, old man," said Argus, who then told a few details about the death of Syria and Cynthia, after which he and Ellen bade the old man good night.

"He's nice," said Ellen. "I'd like to see him more often. By the way, you never did tell me the significance of finding green paint on Cynthia Lane's coat and in Syria Verne's hallway."

Argus grinned as he remarked, "I'll bet right now that Cynthia Lane was at Syria's apartment on Monday."

"Yes," said Argus, "and that she was liquidated because she knew, or guessed, who killed Syria Verne."

Today's Horoscope

If this is your birthday, let the success of your many ambitions make you happy and forget past failures. Study yourself and develop all your latent talents. You make friends easily and have many true and loyal ones. In the next year exercise care and patience in your business and correspondence. Be on your guard against accidents, thefts and quarrels. This period is unfavorable for travel. The child who is born on this date will be quick to give and take offense. Home training should stress truthfulness and tolerance to counterbalance subtlety and vengeance.

Childhood Habits Determine Trends

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

PARENTAL worries are about one-quarter in the field of the physical condition of their offspring: about three-quarters in the psychological sphere. In the field of habit these fuse; habit can make physical deformities and disorders, as well as psychological troubles, misbehavior and emotional patterns.

If any parents under estimate the importance of controlling habits, let them listen to the philosophers. "Plato," records the Seigneur de Montaigne, "did once chide a child for playing with nuts who answered him—'Thou chidest me for a small matter.' 'Habit,' replied Plato, 'is no small matter.' And Epictetus—'If you want to do something make a habit of it: If you want not to do something refrain from doing it ten times.' And to be underlined for parents—'We sow our thoughts, and we reap our actions: we sow our actions and we reap our habits: we sow our characters: we sow our characters and we reap our destiny.'"

Effects of Habits
And destiny is no small thing. It goes all the way from being elected President of the United States to being hung on the scaffold. It decides whether you will be round-shouldered or erect.

Whether or not a nail-biter, a face jerker, a nose-picker, a clothes-trier, a lipser. Whether you take a long or a short time to go to sleep, whether you gulp your food, or dawdle over your food. And if you dawdle over your food your wife may get sore and leave you. And that brother, is destiny.

All of these things, with the possible exception of being President of the United States or being hung, depend upon habits laid down in childhood. Parents have the material when it is malleable—they can inculcate good habits, or allow bad habits to develop.

Coming down to the purely physical I am impressed with the influence of habit on posture. And this is so much dependent on parental precept and example. Round shoulders, stooping posture, curvature of the spine, slouching, all are laid down in the formative years.

THE UNFAIR TWIST

A commentator remarked that a certain army hospital treated an officer's dog and it lived. It refused a bed to the young wife of an enlisted man, would not even send an ambulance, she could not get to another hospital, and died. The implication was that the hospital chose between the officer's dog and a private's wife.

The facts might have been that an officer asked a doctor friend whether he could do anything for his pup. The doctor might say he was no vet, but if the friend would bring the dog around when he wasn't busy he'd give him a look. It might not be in the regulation book, but a dose and a bandage might do no harm.

The maternity ward may have been full—someone sicker than expected had to be kept longer; the young wife's time may have come sooner than schedule. There may have been no empty bed at the moment, no ambulance then on hand. Something went wrong with what should have been a normal birth. Things like this do sometimes happen, to the regret of all, with no fault of anyone concerned. Army hospitals have the reputation of taking very good care of enlisted men and their families. If there was fault or carelessness in this case, doubtless the Army will take very good care not to let it be repeated.

Stating facts as facts is the right and duty of the reporter. Giving them an unfair twist is different. It spreads unjustified fears.

THE GERMAN PROBLEM

WAR victory is at best a long, slow procedure, but there is encouragement for the Allies in signs that the German people are losing confidence. They are a rather tough nation, and the people as well as the fighters have shown that they can "take it." Yet the doses grow steadily harder to take and the aura of victory and dominion is gone. The civilians, like the troops, fight on doggedly without their normal wartime life of spirit.

Some observers say German resistance might be cracked now if they were given any reason to hope for mercy.

It would be a mistake, however, to encourage hope for easy terms, or to impose stiff terms and then relax them. Realistic people know too well the tragedy that developed from letting punishment go by default after the last war.

Who says the war isn't broadening? Never before did so many American girls receive messages from their boy friends in Hawaiian and the languages of the other out-of-the-way places in which Americans are fighting.

Organized labor, with all its faults, is doing a great war job.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

ROBERTS TO BE CANDIDATE

WASHINGTON—Handsome John Hamilton, ex GOP national committee chairman, now chief political adviser of Pennsylvania's Joe Pew, had a talk recently with Congresswoman Clare Luce and Elliott Janeway, of Time and Fortune magazine, about the all-important question which absorbs all Republicans—whom to select to defeat FDR.

"A day or two before the Republican convention," said Hamilton, "my law partner (George Wharton Pepper, former U. S. senator from Pennsylvania) will call Justice Owen Roberts and ask him to say that his statement to the effect that we would have to sacrifice some of our sovereignty after the war to an international police force was an inadvertence which he did not really mean. After this assurance, Justice Roberts will be the Republican nominee for president."

Mrs. Luce, however, did not agree with John. She maintained: "The only man to run against the commander-in-chief is a man who can be classified in the public mind as a commander, namely Douglas MacArthur."

However, Elliott Janeway went over to the bookshelf, took down Sandburg's "Life of Lincoln," and turned to the page where a New York editor is informed of Lincoln's nomination.

"Who is Lincoln?" the editor asked. That's the kind of candidate we've got to have," said Janeway. "Someone who isn't known—someone with no flaws or blemishes they can pick holes in."

All of which, according to the Democrats, is an illustration of how the Republicans are frantically fumbling for a candidate.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S NOSE

Nobody seems to know who wrote it, but here is the jingle which spread like wildfire after publication of Mrs. Roosevelt's picture rubbing noses with a native Maori woman in New Zealand.

"A poor benighted heathen, with a jungle for a home,
Who'd think my fame would spread afar,
To lands across the foam?"

I wasn't very handsome, I was not very bright;
But now they come to see my nose, the island's greatest sight.

My nose was once a simple nose, a little flat and bent.

But now my nose is not a nose, it is a monument.

So, tourists, take your place in line and, for a modest fee,

Rub the nose that rubbed the nose of Mrs. Franklin D.

A thought has just occurred to me which I find rather stunning;

Since my nose rubbed the Roosevelt nose, will it too keep on running?"

ANZIO ORDANCE

Although the problem of supply on the Anzio beachhead has been emphasized, another factor which the public doesn't realize is the problem of ordnance.

Inside that slender foothold in Italy, there must be not only kitchens and temporary hospitals but, even more important, ammunition dumps and repair shops. This is the job of ordnance. A tank is no good unless it is kept in repair and it is the job of ordnance not only to build tanks, but

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"You look like a bright boy," said Argus. "Maybe you can answer a few questions." The boy looked at him vacantly.

"Firstname?" he mumbled through protruding front teeth.

"Firstname, was the hall of the penthouse painted recently?"

"Yes, Monday morning. Miss Verne wanted it done."

"Good. Next: Did you see a red-headed man go up to Miss Verne's apartment, yesterday?"

"Nope."

"How about a man with a red beard?" Ellen quipped jokingly.

"Yes," said the boy. "But he didn't go to the penthouse."

"No? Where did he go?" Argus asked eagerly.

"Don't remember. I just know it wasn't the penthouse."

"Can you describe him?"

"Waal, he wore glasses and had his coat pulled up, but I seen his beard."

"Had you ever seen him before?"

"Nope."

"Was he carrying anything? A parcel or a suitcase or—?"

"Yes. He had a suitcase. I started to help him, but he didn't want any."

"Did you see him come out again?"

"Nope."

"What time was that?"

"Around six. I just came on duty."

"Last night?" Argus asked.

"Yes."

"Did you talk to him?"

"Nope."

"Can you tell me anything else about him?"

"Yes. He limped."

Argus looked at Ellen and raised his brows.

"Was he tall or short?" the detective asked.

The elevator boy turned to look at Argus. "Like you," he said.

"Tall," said Ellen.

"Waal—so-so," said the boy.

"Did you take anyone up to Miss Verne's apartment yesterday?"

"Miss Verne."

"Anyone besides her?"

"Nope."

"What time did she return home?"

"Just before midnight."

"Alone?"

"Yes. She was sore about something."

The car was on the main floor now. The boy opened the door. Some people were waiting to get in. They stood back to let Argus and Ellen step off the car.

Argus smiled. "We're not getting off," he said. "We like it here."

The people looked uncertain. A woman in the party shrugged. They got on. The elevator started up. Ellen and Argus kept silent until the boy let the other passengers off on seven and started down again.

"Now, where were we?" Argus asked. "Oh, yes! Do you know a Mr. Sturgis, a friend of Miss Verne's, by sight?"

"Yes."

"Did you see him on Monday?"

"Nope."

"Mr. William Carstairs, Sr. lives in this building, doesn't he?"

"Yes."

"What floor?"

"Sixth."

"What time did he come in on Monday?"

"Late."

"How late?" Argus persisted.

"Two, I guess."

"And his son, did you see him?" The boy gave him a peculiar look.

Argus handed him a bill.

"Nope, not since he went out at 6:30—Monday."

"Keep this little talk to yourself," he said. "Understand, son?"

"O.K."

"About the man with the beard. Didn't it look to you as if he were trying to disguise himself—beard—glasses and all?"

"Nope. My grandfather had a beard and wore glasses."

"Not a red beard, surely," put in Ellen.

"It turned gray," said the boy.

"My!" said Ellen. "How did your grandmother like it?"

"Never said."

"Was Miss Verne home over the week end?" Argus asked.

"Nope."

"Was she usually away over the week end?"

"Yes."

"Ever say where she was going or where she'd been?"

"Nope."

Argus and Ellen stepped off the elevator. "You're from Vermont, aren't you?" the detective asked over his shoulder.

The boy looked at him in astonishment. "Yes," he said. "How do you know?"

Argus smiled. "I just guessed."

When they were on the street, Ellen asked: "Where do we go from here?"

"A friend of mine, who lives on the next block, has a laboratory where he carries on experiments. It's sort of a hobby with him. I figured we might drop over and have him take a look at the red hair I found and see what he can tell me about it."

"You think it might have some connection with the bearded man the elevator boy took up Monday night?"

"Maybe."

"What about that gun in the air-conditioning machine? Are you going to tell the police about it?" Ellen asked.

"Presently. But for the time being, don't mention it to anyone. We mustn't let the murderer know we've found it," he cautioned.

"Argus, you said Syria was murdered by telephone—what did you mean?"

"It's quite technical, honey. Think you could understand it?"

Ellen pushed him.

"You remember there was a wire leading to the air-conditioning machine from the bell box of the phone?"

"Yes," said Ellen.

"Well, I imagine if I were to take that bell box apart, I'd find the wire connected with the phone wire itself, in such a way that the ringing of the phone bell or the lifting of the receiver completed an electrical circuit which started up the air-conditioner."

"So what?" asked Ellen.

"So the first couple of revolutions the fan blower made, the cord tied to the trigger would be drawn taut and then—" Argus clapped both hands together loudly to signify an explosion.

"Then all anyone would have to do would be to telephone Syria or wait for her to pick up the receiver and she'd be shot."

"That's the way it looks," Argus agreed. "Come to think of it, it would have to be fixed so that the lifting of the receiver does the trick, not the ringing of the bell."

"Say," said Ellen. "Bill Carstairs' phoning her in the Penguin Club last night becomes more significant."

"This is it," said Argus, stopping in front of a renovated brownstone building. "I hope he's home."

The detective pressed the bell with a gloved thumb. A metallic clicking sound rewarded his effort. He pushed open the heavy front door. A white-haired man poked his head out of a rear apartment.

"Who is it?" he asked in a high-pitched voice.

"Hello, Hanks. It's Argus Steele and friend."

"Argus! I haven't see you in years. Why do you desert your old friends?"

"This is Miss Curtis, Mr. Hanks."

"Glad to meet you, my dear," the elderly man said. "Come in, won't you?"

"I was afraid we might wake you up at this hour," Argus said.

"No. I'm conducting a little experiment. . . ." His voice trailed on as he led them into a large, high-ceilinged room filled with tubes and glass containers.

"I use this as my workshop," Hanks explained. "My living quarters are in the back. I don't have much in the house but beer."

"Don't bother," said Ellen.

"It's no bother," said Hanks.

"Don't let us disturb you, Hanks. I just dropped in to have you take a look at something for me—" and Argus brought up the subject of the red hair. Hanks g. up, fussed with some oblong pieces of glass slides. He placed the hair between them and studied it through a microscope. Finally he peered at them over the rims of his glasses.

Argus asked, "Can you tell whether it was used in a false beard?"

"I'll try to tell you in a minute," said Hanks, resuming his examination. . . . Soon he announced, "It's real human hair and definitely belonged to a xanthous person, but mucilaginous traces at the root suggests its use in a wig. He looked up with a smile of accomplishment.

"Many thanks, old man," said Argus, who then told a few details about the death of Syria and Cynthia, after which he and Ellen bade the old man good night.

"He's nice," said Ellen. "I'd like to see him more often. By the way, you never did tell me the significance of finding green paint on Cynthia Lane's coat and in Syria Verne's hallway."

Argus grinned as he remarked, "I'll bet right now that Cynthia Lane was at Syria's apartment on Monday," Argus said. "And that she was liquidated because she knew, or guessed, who killed Syria Verne."

Effects of Habits
And destiny is no small thing. It goes all the way from being elected President of the United States to being hung on the scaffold. It decides whether you will be round-shouldered or erect. The Turks seem to have forgotten that prolonged fence-straddling often leaves one high and dry.

One of the causes for wartime eye strain, says the man at the next desk, is the peering between layers of a sandwich to find the meat.

Now that the Italian navy has been divided among the Allies "Big Three," Grandpappy Jenkins says it may see something of the war.

If nothing else does, the Allies' round-the-clock bombings of Germany should indicate to Hitler that his time is running short.

That old woman, of Mother Goose fame, who lived in a shoe certainly got full value from her No. 18 coupon.

Another good result of our island hopping is that it has made the Japs hopping mad—but they can't do much about it.

I see so many soldiers on the street with very unsoldierly stooped over carriage. Even the drill sergeants haven't been able to drive out this habit.

Good Habits For Bad

There is no such thing as eliminating bad habits, because Nature abhors a vacuum. You have to put a good habit in its place. Again to revert to the philosophers, Erasmus said—"A nail is driven out by another nail, habit is overcome by habit." This is not always so easy and demands a study of the motive and origin of the habit. With such a thing as nail-biting you have a difficult task. With the cry baby, it can be seen that he cries because experience has taught him he gets something that way: break the circle, and make him substitute a smile for a whine and you go a long towards stopping the whining.

Dr. Hurlock, in her valuable Modern Ways With Children, tells of an instance of a boy who dived over his food. His aunt determined to break him of it, found he did it because it drew attention to him. So at table she said—"I am surprised you eat so slowly. My little girl can eat as fast as I can, and she is only your age." He began to ask how long it took her to eat a baked potato, her cereal, a chop, etc. When he found he got attention and favorable comment for eating quickly he quit dawdling.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, March 13

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather difficult and anxious state of affairs in which calamity might follow in the train of excitability, turbulence, quarrels, tense and destructive tendencies and emotional indulgences. Any form of loss of temper, in word, deed, vengeful acts or vindictive writings might provoke public censure or private reprisals. Accidents, thefts, illness may accent adverse conditions. In danger use tact, restraint and equilibrium.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may be beset by a year calling for the utmost composure, prudence, self control and vigilance, as a train of adverse and menacing conditions arise, which might exact public as well as private censure or penalty.

Impulsive, rash, vindictive and malicious conduct are likely to provoke disaster and regret. A child born on this day may be tempestuous, wayward, indulgent, impulsively inviting many forms of misery and regret.

ARMY SPONSORS COLLECTION OF MUSIC MAKERS

City-wide collection of musical instruments for the soldiers at the front started here today. A part of a nation-wide campaign to provide fighting men with the means of making their own music, the drive is directed at rounding up the saxophones, banjos, and other instruments that lie forgotten in closets and attics throughout the city.

Sponsored by the Army as a means of building the morale of fighting men, collection of musical instruments will make it possible for soldiers all over the world to form orchestras in their camps or posts, or to gather around in the evening and "make music".

The Army has requested "Coca-Cola" bottlers all over the country to act as agents for this campaign. Anybody having unused musical instruments may take them to any grocery store, filling station, drug store or other place that sells bottled Coca-Cola. The trucks of the Circleville Coca-Cola Bottling Works have agreed to pick up the instruments at these places and ship them off to the Army which in turn will distribute them to the soldiers.

All instruments except pianos, bull fiddles, or phonographs are urgently needed, according to Frank A. Lynch, president of the local Coca-Cola Bottling Company. He points out that because of war production demands, it has not been possible to manufacture as many musical instruments as are needed in the Army camps. The drive will last through March 27.

ASHVILLE
Private Charles Gray of Camp Robinson, Arkansas, is home on a 10-day furlough.

Glenn Malone of the U. S. Navy arrived home in time for the district finals at Westerville.

A minor automobile accident occurred in Ashville Saturday when cars driven by J. M. Borror and Martha Cummins collided on East Main street. Slight damage was done to the Borror car.

Don Duvall has recovered his auto which was stolen in Columbus Saturday week. The car was located by Columbus police and returned to its owner who reports little damage done.

Russell Gregg and Richard Messick were honored by being placed on the district tournament's first team, selected by the Dispatch sport writers.

The Ashville basketball team is to be congratulated on its fine season's record of 23 consecutive victories. Ashville's failure to "cash in" on shots, which ordinarily were made, was largely responsible for the team's loss to Grove City in the district finals. Neither the team or local fans should be too downhearted over this loss, but rather should point with pride to a season's record which was one of the best ever compiled by a local team. We wonder sometimes if we are not taking our sports too seriously and have transformed "games" into contests.

The brown dog, owned by George O'Day who is now abroad with Uncle Sam's Army, disappeared recently. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of this dog should get in touch with Hayes O'Day, as he is very anxious to regain possession of the dog because of George's affection for his canine friend.

ARMY SPONSORS COLLECTION OF MUSIC MAKERS

City-wide collection of musical instruments for the soldiers at the front started here today. A part of a nation-wide campaign to provide fighting men with the means of making their own music,
the drive is directed at rounding up the saxophones, banjos, and other instruments that lie forgotten in closets and attics throughout the city.

Sponsored by the Army as a means of building the morale of fighting men, collection of musical instruments will make it possible for soldiers all over the world to form orchestras in their camps or posts, or to gather around in the evening and "make music".

The Army has requested "Coca-Cola" bottlers all over the country to act as agents for this campaign. Anybody having unused musical instruments may take them to any grocery store, filling station, drug store or other place that sells bottled Coca-Cola.
The trucks of the Circleville Coca-Cola Bottling Works have agreed to pick up the instruments at these places and ship them off to the Army which in turn will distribute them to the soldiers.

All instruments except pianos, bull fiddles, or phonographs are urgently needed, according to Frank A. Lynch, president of the local Coca-Cola Bottling Company. He points out that because of war production demands, it has not been possible to manufacture as many musical instruments as are needed in the Army camps.
The drive will last through March 27.

ASHVILLE
Private Charles Gray of Camp
Robinson, Arkansas, is home on a 10-day furlough.

Glenn Malone of the U. S. Navy arrived home in time for the district finals at Westerville.

A minor automobile accident occurred in Ashville Saturday when cars driven by J. M. Borror and Martha Cummins collided on East Main street. Slight damage was done to the Borror car.

Don Duvall has recovered his auto which was stolen in Columbus Saturday week. The car was located by Columbus police and returned to its owner who reports little damage done.

Russell Gregg and Richard Messick were honored by being placed on the district tournament's first team, selected by the Dispatch sport writers.

The Ashville basketball team is to be congratulated on its fine season's record of 23 consecutive victories. Ashville's failure to "cash in" on shots, which ordinarily were made, was largely responsible for the team's loss to Grove City in the district finals. Neither the team or local fans should be too discouraged over this loss, but rather should point with pride to a season's record which was one of the best ever compiled by a local team. We wonder sometimes if we are not taking our sports too seriously and have transformed
"games" into contests.

O'Day who is now abroad with Uncle Sam's Army, disappeared whereabouts of this dog should he is very anxious to regain possession of the dog because of George's affection for his canine friend.

32 TEAMS NOW IN CLASS A, B TOURNAMENTS

Several Favorites Fall In Week End Contests; Regionals Set

COLUMBUS, March 13 — The pattern for Ohio's high school basketball championships was drafted today following the elimination of all but 32 teams in last week's district tournaments.

Last week's torrid program saw 16 district champions crowned in both class A and B as 120 odd teams dropped from the running for the state championships. Among the district fatalities were seven previously unbeaten clubs—Painesville in Class A and Ashville, Sugarcreek - Shanesville, Ross Township, Covington, Enon and Bluffton in Class B.

The big Class B toll left not a single team in that division with a perfect record. However, four Class A clubs, headed by Newark and Martins Ferry, still sported flawless records, Newark, in winning 35-31 over Columbus Acquinas in the Central District "A" finals, chalked up its 25th consecutive win. Martins Ferry made it 24 in a row by sweeping through the Steubenville district event, winning over Tiltonville, 59-39, in the finals. The other unbeaten "A" teams were Findlay and Cincinnati St. Xavier, with 20 apiece.

But the account of weekend district tournament play ranks second in importance to advance material on regional tournaments up for decision this week. Drawings were made yesterday for six of the eight regional events and the other two will be hashed out today.

The Dennison meet in which unconquered Newark and Martins Ferry will battle alongside Akron North and Coshocton looms as the feature event of the regional program. It is one of the two tournaments for which drawings will be made today.

The regional affair scheduled for Friday and Saturday at Youngstown is expected to prove second most important in deciding the 1944 state Class A title. Drawings made in Youngstown yesterday match Canton Timken and Cleveland Heights and Canton Lehman and Massillon in Friday night games.

Lehman, Timken and Massillon won battles in Saturday night district finals to give Stark county three berths in regional play. Lehman beat Canton McKinley, 44-48, before four thousand fans at Youngstown, while Timken defeated Warren, 46-41. Massillon eliminated North Canton's Class B team, 45-32, at Kent where Akron North also advanced by beating Akron South, 45-40.

The high-scoring Lehman Polar Bears will be making their third straight trip to the regionals while this will be Timken's first. Massillon has played in the state tourney, or the regionals, four of the last six years.

Drawings Conducted

Drawings have also been made for the Bowling Green and Dayton Class A regionals. The Bowling Green meet will bring together Mansfield and Van Wert and Toledo Woodward and Findlay Friday night with the winners meeting in the finals Saturday night. Findlay rules as the favorite with 20 straight victories but Mansfield, with a record of 19 wins against four losses, and Toledo Woodward, boasting a record of 18 wins in 20 starts, can't be counted out either.

The high-flying Middletown club, which won the Dayton district "A" affair along with Hamilton Public, will face Marietta and the Hamilton five will face unbeaten Cincinnati St. Xavier in the Dayton regional Saturday.

The Queen City parochial five registered its 20th win in capturing the Cincinnati district event Saturday night.

The Class B picture, without a single undefeated team in the running, lacks one or two strong favorites like Newark and Martins Ferry in Class A. Teams like Ashville, Sugarcreek - Shanesville, West Lafayette and Bluffton that were expected to go places in the small-school race are out of the chase. Consequently, their conquerors rules as favorites—if such are possible in the current unpredictable Class B title quest.

Thus, the "favorites" are Tipp City, Philo, Worthington, Grove City, Lima St. John, Akron Ellet and Bellaire St. John, to mention a few.

Tipp City, which started the state's cage followers talking after it knocked off three unbeaten clubs in sweeping through the Springfield district meet, will open defense of its regional championship in a game with Wyoming at Springfield Saturday. Worthington, Central district co-champion, will tackle Franklin in the other first round scrap.

William Sullivan was champion of the British Navy for seven years. The boy has shown he can handle his dukes. (International)

DODDS HAILED AS GREATEST MILER

Boston Seminarian Sets New Indoor Record In Garden Run

NEW YORK, March 13—Boston Seminarian Gil Dodds was acclaimed as one of the greatest milers of all time today after setting a new indoor record in the Columbus mile, feature of Saturday night's K. of C. meet at Madison Square Garden.

The hunky Dodds whirled around the Garden boards in 4:07.3, clipping a tenth of a second off the old mark and attaining for himself a full sweep in the season's five important indoor miles. Dodds' previous victories were seen in the Wanamaker, 4:10.6; Hunter, 4:09.5; Baxter, 4:08; AAU, 4:08.6.

Second in the Columbus, forty yards behind Dodds, was Don Burnham of Dartmouth, with Bill Hulse of the New York A. C. third and Rudy Simms of New York university last.

After his mile victory, Dodds went on to score a triumph in the 1000-yard run, whipping Les Elsenhart of Ohio, after moving from last place to the lead on the third lap. Al Daily, of the New York A. C., trailed Elsenhart, with Hulse and Johnny Fulton, west coast star, in the lurch.

Dodds was clocked in 2:11.2 for the 1000, seconds behind the late John Borican's world record of 2:08.8.

CARDS, BROWNS TO OPEN CAMP; PLAYERS SIGN

ST. LOUIS, March 13—Most of the prospective pre-season roster for the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns already have signed contracts and will be on hand for the opening of training camps next Monday.

This was the report today from Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and Bill De Witt, vice-president of the Browns.

The National Leaguers will launch their training at Cairo, Ill., while the Americans make their start at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

About 20 of the 28 players on the Cardinals' roster, and more than 14 of 33 of the Browns' prospects, have signed, the spokesmen said.

Managers Billy Southworth of the Cards and Luke Sewell of the Browns are scheduled to arrive in St. Louis this week, along with Ollie Marquardt, new manager of the Toledo Mud Hens who will train at Cape Girardeau with the Browns.

Major Leagues Hope To Complete Season Despite Restrictions

NEW YORK, March 13 — For the second year in a row preparations for a baseball season began today in the snowbound and rain-spattered training camps of the east and mid-west in keeping with travel restrictions and to the chagrin of the few who envisioned a return to the sun-burnished, palm-festooned settings of the south and west. The trapped Spring festivities will be on in full swing within a week or so for every major league club, with most of them due to have at least the nucleus of a workout squad on hand before this evening.

All are hard-hit by the draft and war industries, but every official greeted the start toward the 1944 campaign with the firm conviction that the season will be finished, regardless of the brand of baseball that may be offered to the cash clientele.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the world champion Yankees arrived at his Atlantic City camp over the week end to await the arrival of his depleted squad, with the welcome mat on the doorstep for all hands whether they are signed or looking for an argument over their paychecks.

As the boss of the No. 1 team viewed the situation, he had no more to worry about than any of the rest. He has lost some manpower since last season, will lose others within a few weeks and must rely on 4-F, elderly veterans and youngsters, but so do most of the clubs and the Yanks have the advantage of at least being on top at the moment. They are the ones the rest will have to knock down.

The St. Louis Cardinals are in much the same position in the National League as they begin preparations at Cairo, Ill., for defense of their National League pennant.

Exactly how many stars the two championship clubs will be missing before the season gets well under way is conjectural, but both certainly will be without some of their outstanding performers—a few already called to the colors.

The result is likely to bring about a pair of wide open races, baseball men agreed as the clubs began their preliminaries at the following sites:

American League

New York Yankees at Atlantic City, N. J.; Boston Red Sox at Tufts College and Baltimore; Detroit Tigers at Evansville, Ind.; Philadelphia Athletics at Fredericksburg, Md.; Chicago White Sox, French Lick, Ind.; St. Louis Browns at Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Cleveland Indians at Bloomington, Ind.; Washington Senators at College Park, Md.

National League

St. Louis Cardinals at Cairo, Ill.; Cincinnati Reds at Bloomington, Ind.; Brooklyn Dodgers at Bear Mountain, N. Y.; Pittsburgh Pirates at Muncie, Ind.; Chicago Cubs at French Lick, Ind.; Boston Braves at Wallingford, Conn.; Philadelphia Phillies at Wilmington, Del.; New York Giants at Lakewood, N. J.

Real workouts are not slated for several days, giving late arrivals time to reach camp and all hands a chance to unlimb muscles after the winter's hibernation. The first exhibition games are still two weeks away. There are still many holdouts and many players uncertain of their status.

Although few women in Nassau county, New York, carried pistols before the war, nearly 1,500 now hold permits to "pack a pistol."

COLUMBUS, March 13—Cleveland keglers today had given the singles, doubles and all-events standings in the Ohio State women's bowling tournament a sound shaking but couldn't grab off a single first place.

Betty Collings, of Cleveland, 1940 single champ, totaled 566 in the singles, but it was good for only second place in the Class A division. In first place with 578 was Sophia Drew of Toledo.

Three Cleveland duos gained places among the leaders in the Class A doubles. Tampa Lann and Mary Danick pounded out a 1062 series for second place and Marge Cooke and Leona Thomas took third with 1036. Norma Schmeling and Mildred Klier hit 1027 which placed them in a three-way tie for fifth place.

ASHVILLE DROPS OUT OF RACE FOR B TITLE

Grove City Wins 47 To 31 And Pleasant Drops Before Worthington

Ashville slumped Saturday night and dropped out of the running for the Class B championship, losing to Grove City at Westerville by a 47 to 31 count. It was win number 21 for Grove City, and the first loss in 24 starts for Ashville.

In the other game of the Westerville tourney Worthington outplayed Pleasant, of Marion county, winning 61 to 32. It was the 22nd win for Worthington.

Worthington will go to the Springfield regional and Grove City will enter the Logan regional. Grove City was left at the post in the opening play with Ashville, the Pickaway county boys scoring the first points. It was not long, however, until Grove City got the range and the quarter ended with the Greyhounds leading by a 12-10 count. Three times in the second period the count was tied and it was 21 to 21 at the half.

Jim Jahn broke the tie early in the third quarter and Meadows and Reibel each made a pair of buckets. Messick scored two baskets and Wilson counted twice on free throws for Ashville between four more Grove City points and at the end of the period the count was 35-27.

The Franklin county boys hoisted their count to 45 in the first few minutes of the final period and then played for time.

Scoring honors for the games went to Messick, of Ashville, who tallied 20. He made the only Ashville baskets in the fourth quarter, scoring four.

The box score:

McKECHNIE SEES CLOSE RACE IN NATIONAL LOOP

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 13 —Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds was optimistic today of his team's chances to be up among the leaders throughout the coming season, although admitting the National League race this season looked like a toss-up.

His observation came following the arrival of the vanguard of Red players and officials for the start of training today in the University of Indiana fieldhouse.

Among the early arrivals were Warren Giles, club vice-president, and general manager; Coach Hans Lobert; Pitchers Bucky Walters and Joe Beggs; infielders Ronald Harrington and Woodward Williams, and a smattering of rookies.

OPEN FISHING SEASON WITH 21-POUND CATCH

Raymond Dixon, York street, and Leonard Francis, Hayward avenue, officially opened the fishing season Saturday and netted three grannie catfish that tipped the beam at a 21 pound total. The largest fish weighed eight pounds. Dixon and Francis said they caught the fish out of Deer creek, north of Williamsport.

Martins Ferry made it 24 in a row by sweeping through the Steubenville district event, winning over Tiltonville, 59-39, in the finals. The other unbeaten "A" teams were Findlay and Cincinnati St. Xavier, with 20 apiece.

But the account of weekend district tournament play ranks second in importance to advance material on regional tournaments up for decision this week. Drawings were made yesterday for six of the eight regional events and the other two will be hashed out today. The Dennison meet in which unconquered Newark and Martins Ferry will battle alongside Akron North and Coshooton looms as the feature event of the regional program. It is one of the two tournaments for which drawings will be made today.

The regional affair scheduled for Friday and Saturday at Youngstown is expected to prove second most important in deciding the 1944 state Class A title. Drawings made in Youngstown yesterday match Canton Timken and Cleveland Heights and Canton Lehman and Massillon in Friday night games.

Lehman, Timken and Massillon won battles in Saturday night district finals to give Stark county three berths in regional play. Lehman beat Canton McKinley, 44-48, before four thousand fans at Youngstown, while Timken defeated Warren, 46-41. Massillon eliminated North Canton's Class B team, 45-32, at Kent where Akron North also advanced by beating Akron South, 45-40.

The high-scoring Lehman Polar Bears will be making their third straight trip to the regionals while this will be Timken's first. Massillon has played in the state tourney, or the regionals, four of the last six years.

Drawings Conducted
Drawings have also been made for the Bowling Green and Dayton Class A regionals. The Bowling Green meet will bring together Mansfield and Van Wert and Toledo Woodward and Findlay Friday night with the winners meeting in the finals Saturday night. Findlay rules as the favorite with 20 straight victories but Mansfield, with a record of 19 wins against four losses, and Toledo Woodward, boasting a record of 18 wins in 20 starts, can't be counted out either.

The high-flying Middletown club, which won the Dayton district "A" affair along with Hamilton Public, will face Marietta and the Hamilton five will face unbeaten Cincinnati St. Xavier in the Dayton regional Saturday.

The Queen City parochial five registered its 20th win in capturing the Cincinnati district event Saturday night.

The Class B picture, without a single undefeated team in the running, lacks one or two strong favorites like Newark and Martins Ferry in Class A. Teams like Ashville, Sugar Creek - Shanesville, West Lafayette and Bluffton that were expected to go places in the small-school race are out of the chase. Consequently, their conquerors rules as favorites—if such are possible in the current unpredictable Class B title quest.

Thus, the "favorites" are Tipp City, Philo, Worthington, Grove City, Lima St. John, Akron Elliot and Bellaire St. John, to mention a few.

Tipp City, which started the state's cage followers talking after it knocked off three unbeaten clubs in sweeping through the Springfield district meet, will open defense of its regional championship in a game with Wyoming at Springfield Saturday. Worthington, Central district co-champion, will tackle Franklin in the other first round scrap.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN KIN HOPES TO BE CHAMPION, TOO

John L. Sullivan II

The bigger they are...

Grandfather, right, and parents watch John punch bag.

ALONG ABOUT 1960 you might be hailing this London, England, boy as the heavyweight champion of the world. His name? John L. Sullivan II, kin of the great John L. Sullivan, the Boston Strong Man, who held the title from 1859 until 1892. John, only six years old now, is being tutored by his grandfather, William Sullivan, 85, a cousin of the Boston champion William Sullivan was champion of the British Navy for seven years. The boy has shown he can handle his dukes. (International)

DODDS HAILED AS GREATEST MILER

Boston Seminarian Sets New Indoor Record In Garden Run

NEW YORK, March 13—Boston Seminarian Gil Dodds was acclaimed as one of the greatest milers of all time today after setting a new indoor record in the Columbian mile, feature of Saturday night's K. of C. meet at Madison Square Garden.

The hunky Dodds whirled around the Garden boards in 4:07.3, clipping a tenth of a second off the old mark and attaining for himself a full sweep in the season's five important indoor miles. Dodds' previous victories were seen in the Wanamaker, 4:10.6; Hunter, 4:09.5; Baxter, 4:08; AAU, 4:08.6.

Second in the Columbian, forty yards behind Dodds, was Don Burnham of Dartmouth, with Bill Hulse of the New York A. C. third and Rudy Simms of New York university last.

After his mile victory, Dodds went on to score a triumph in the 1000-yard run, whipping Les Elsenhart of Ohio, after moving from last place to the lead on the third lap. Al Daily, of the New York A. C., trailed Elsenhart, with Hulse and Johnny Fulton, west coast star, in the lurch.

Dodds was clocked in 2:11.2 for the 1000, seconds behind the late John Borican's world record of 2:08.8.

CARDS, BROWNS TO OPEN CAMP; PLAYERS SIGN

ST. LOUIS, March 13—Most of the prospective pre-season roster for the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns already have signed contracts and will be on hand for the opening of training camps next Monday.

This was the report today from Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and Bill De Witt, vice-president of the Browns.

The National Leaguers will launch their training at Cairo, Ill., while the Americans make their start at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

About 20 of the 28 players on the Cardinals' roster, and more than 14 of 33 of the Browns' prospects, have signed, the spokesmen said.

Managers Billy Southworth of the Cardinals and Luke Sewell of the Browns are scheduled to arrive in St. Louis this week, along with Ollie Marquardt, new manager of the Toledo Mud Hens who will train at Cape Girardeau with the Browns.

Major Leagues Hope To Complete Season Despite Restrictions

NEW YORK, March 13 — For the second year in a row preparations for a baseball season began today in the snowbound and rain-spattered training camps of the east and mid-west in keeping with travel restrictions and to the chagrin of the few who envisioned a return to the sun-burnished, palm-fringed settings of the south and west. The frapped Spring festivities will be on in full swing within a week or so for every major league club, with most of them due to have at least the nucleus of a workout squad on hand before this evening.

All are hard-hit by the draft and war industries, but every official greeted the start toward the 1944 campaign with the firm conviction that the season will be finished, regardless of the brand of baseball that may be offered to the cash clientele.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the world champion Yankees arrived at his Atlantic City camp over the week end to await the arrival of his depleted squad, with the welcome mat on the doorstep for all hands whether they are signed or looking for an argument over their paychecks.

As the boss of the No. 1 team viewed the situation, he had no more to worry about than any of the rest. He has lost some manpower since last season, will lose others within a few weeks and must rely on 4-F, elderly veterans and youngsters, but so do most of the clubs and the Yanks have the advantage of at least being on top at the moment. They are the ones the rest will have to knock down. The St. Louis Cardinals are in much the same position in the National League as they begin preparations at Cairo, Ill., for defense of their National League pennant.

Exactly how many stars the two championship clubs will be missing before the season gets well under way is conjectural, but both certainly will be without some of their outstanding performers—a few already called to the colors.

The result is likely to bring about a pair of wide open races, baseball men agreed as the clubs began their preliminaries at the following sites:

American League

National League

St. Louis Cardinals at Cairo, Ill.; Cincinnati Reds at Bloomington, Ind.; Brooklyn Dodgers at Bear Mountain, N. Y.; Pittsburgh Pirates at Muncie, Ind.; Chicago Cubs at French Lick, Ind.; Boston Braves at Wallingford, Conn.; Philadelphia Phillies at Wilmington, Del.; New York Giants at Lakewood, N. J.

Real workouts are not slated for several days, giving late arrivals time to reach camp and all hands a chance to unlimb muscles after the Winter's hibernation. The first exhibition games are still two weeks away. There are still many holdouts and many players uncertain of their status.

Although few women in Nassau county, New York, carried pistols before the war, nearly 1,500 now hold permits to "pack a pistol."

ASHVILLE DROPS OUT OF RACE FOR B TITLE

Grove City Wins 47 To 31 And Pleasant Drops Before Worthington

Ashville slumped Saturday night and dropped out of the running for the Class B championship, losing to Grove City at Westerville by a 47 to 31 count. It was win number 21 for Grove City, and the first loss in 24 starts for Ashville.

In the other game of the Westerville tourney Worthington outplayed Pleasant, of Marion county, winning 61 to 32. It was the 22nd win for Worthington.

Worthington will go to the Springfield regional and Grove City will enter the Logan regional.

Grove City was left at the post in the opening play with Ashville, the Pickaway county boys scoring the first points. It was not long, however, until Grove City got the range and the quarter ended with the Greyhounds leading by a 12-10 count. Three times in the second period the count was tied and it was 21 to 21 at the half.

Jim Jahn broke the tie early in the third quarter and Meadows and Reibel each made a pair of buckets. Messick scored two baskets and Wilson counted twice on free throws for Ashville between four more Grove City points and at the end of the period the count was 35-27.

The Franklin county boys hoisted their count to 45 in the first few minutes of the final period and then played for time.

Scoring honors for the games went to Messick, of Ashville, who tallied 20. He made the only Ashville baskets in the fourth quarter, scoring four.

The box score:

McKECHNIE SEES CLOSE RACE IN NATIONAL LOOP

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 13 —Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds was optimistic today of his team's chances to be up among the leaders throughout the coming season, although admitting the National League race this season looked like a toss-up.

His observation came following the arrival of the vanguard of Red players and officials for the start of training today in the University of Indiana fieldhouse.

Among the early arrivals were Warren Giles, club vice-president, and general manager; Coach Hans Lobert; Pitchers Bucky Walters and Joe Egan; infielders Ronald Harrington and Woodward Williams, and a smattering of rookies.

OPEN FISHING SEASON WITH 21-POUND CATCH

Raymond Dixon, York street, and Leonard Francis, Hayward avenue, officially opened the fishing season Saturday and netted three grannie catfish that tipped the beam at a 21 pound total. The largest fish weighed eight pounds. Dixon and Francis said they caught the fish out of Deer creek, north of Williamsport.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE THE ENEMY GUESS

ANYBODY who has to make a guess may guess wrong. That is why it is frequently good bridge to throw an opponent into the lead in the middle of a hand, if there is some suit which you are able to play in any of several different ways. It may be that the opponent who gets the lead will decide to return the doubtful suit, thus ending your worries. If he doesn't, you still have a chance to make your own guess.

West scored his spade K and A, then led the 5 to the Q, which South ruffed with the heart 4. Seeing that he was certain to lose a third trick to the diamond A, he realized he could not afford a trump loser.

With four trumps to the Q out against him, he had three ways to try for all of the trump tricks. One was to try for the drop of the Q by taking the A and K, which would be the normally best chance, on percentage, if there had been no bidding or doubling by the opponents, and nothing to indicate their distribution or location of high cards. But the bidding of West and his double altered the usual mathematics applying to a holding of nine trumps lacking the Q.

Did West expect a trump trick for his setter? Or was he short in trumps, and did his double betoken the probability that he was trying to protect a possible guarded Q in East's hand? South could have guessed any of three ways—playing for the drop, finessing against West or finessing against East.

Finally he decided to make the opponents guess. Without touching trumps, he led his diamond K to West. This made it appear to that worthy as if he intended to ruff out some diamond losers. So West returned a trump. South's worries were over now, whether East put in the Q or not. If West returned a club or diamond, South still could have done his own guessing in the trump suit.

How would you play for 4♠ Spades on the South cards of this deal after West leads the heart 2?

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

After "We, the People's" host Milo Boulton asked Sgt. Lou Diamond, "I fought at Chateau Thierry and in the Argonne in the last war and I was with the first troops to hit the beach in the Solomons in this war."

Julia Sanderson says: One reason there is so much humor in the world is because there are so many persons who take themselves seriously!

Morton Gould, who co-stars with Alec Templeton on "Carnival," has just been informed that his "American Salute" is now one of the most widely played orchestral pieces in the United States. Based on "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," the selection has headed symphonic programs, concerts by Army and Navy bands and is in the permanent repertoire of American high schools.

Bob Burns, radio's "Arkansas Traveler," will be guest on Bing Crosby's "Music Hall" Thursday. As Bob's own show follows directly on the heels of the Crosby airing, Burns will have less than one minute to reach his own studio, following his guest appearance.

New Academy Award winner Paul Lukas makes his first radio appearance since getting the honor, on the Burns and Allen program next Tuesday.

William Bendix, whose "Life of Riley" is heard every Sunday on the Blue network, has three weeks off between pictures, so he's playing five nearby service camps a week and returning to Hollywood for his week-end radio show.

High School Pupils Open Red Cross War Fund Drive

CASH RAISING EVENTS BEGUN BY COMMITTEE

Basketball Tournament And Girl Reserve Dance Are Features

CAMPAIGN ON TWO WEEKS

Talks Boosting Red Cross Scheduled For Each Program

Circleville high school Monday went all out in behalf of the Red Cross War Fund, opening a program that will continue for two weeks and has for its primary purpose the raising of cash.

Monday afternoon the Hi-Y showed motion pictures before a large assembly that contributed toward the War Fund. Monday afternoon was to see the opening action in the annual Stodge basketball tournament with an admission charge. The tournament will continue Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tuesday afternoon the Junior Girl Reserves will stage a dance at the high school. The high school band will present a concert for grade school pupils Wednesday and another concert for the high school pupils Thursday afternoon. A concert will be given for the general public Thursday evening.

None of the events slated for this week is free. Brief talks boosting the Red Cross and urging liberal contributions to the War Fund will be made on each program.

School pupils of the city are carrying the Red Cross message into their homes and are expected to be important factors in the success of the campaign now being conducted in the county.

Miss Mary Virginia Crites is director of the Red Cross program in all the city schools and is assisted by John Boggs and Howard Moore, of the Stodge club, Ned C. Stout and Mark Schumm, of the Hi-Y, Elizabeth Downing and Maxine Friedman, of the Senior Girl Reserves, and Ann Curtin and Ann Snider, of the Junior Girl Reserves.

PICKAWAY ONE OF 41 COUNTIES IN PATROL AREA

Pickaway is one of 41 counties in Central Ohio which will be patrolled by military police personnel under supervision of the area provost marshal, Fifth Service Command headquarters at Fort Hayes disclosed today.

A regular patrol unit will be maintained in Columbus, with the area headquarters exercising jurisdiction under a realignment program of the Fifth Service Command provost activities.

Larger cities in the area will be patrolled regularly and the smaller cities and towns will be patrolled irregularly, it was announced.

Other counties in the area patrol include Ross, Franklin, Fayette, and Hocking.

DIES COMMITTEE MAY PROBE RADIO CHAIN

WASHINGTON, March 13—Representative Martin Dies (D) Texas, announced today the House Committee on Un-American Activities may launch an investigation of the broadcasting industry on charges that "certain companies" are distributing un-American propaganda.

Dies, chairman of the committee, said it is likely the probe will result in the subpoena of "scripts of certain radio commentators over a period of several years," as well as sponsors and officials of broadcasting companies.

"Many people in the country are beginning to suspect that certain broadcasting companies are in collusion with certain sponsors to mold public opinion by propaganda," Dies said in a prepared statement.

CROSSING CRASH FATAL TO EIGHT; PROBE IS BEGUN

COLUMBUS, March 13—Officials today began an investigation into an auto-train crash one mile east of nearby West Jefferson, which resulted in death to eight persons and injury to two others.

The dead were members of two families, Mrs. Louis Sherman and two of her children, Betty 14, and Lena, 12, and Mrs. Melissa Lyons, and four of her children, Shirlene, John, Inez and another whose name was not learned. Injured were Louis Sherman, 45, driver of the car and his 5-year-old son, David. The Shermans reside at 4726 Sullivant Ave., Columbus while Mrs. Lyons address was tentatively listed as 300 Inah Ave., located in the Evergreen Terrace Addition near Rome.

Sherman had only purchased the car Saturday and was taking the women and children for a ride when the car was struck about 8:05 p. m. Sunday by the Pennsylvania Railroad's Spirit of St. Louis, which was enroute to New York from St. Louis. The state highway patrol reported. The crash occurred at the East Pike crossing a mile east of West Jefferson and a half mile north of Route 40.

SCHOLASTIC TEST IS CONDUCTED SATURDAY

Thirty-five Circleville and Pickaway county high school seniors took the general scholastic test conducted Saturday at the high school here, Superintendent of Schools George D. McDowell announced today. The test papers were sealed and sent to the State Department of Education offices in Columbus for grading and scoring. A list of the contestants will be announced Tuesday, the superintendent announced.

Tells of Payoffs

VOLUNTEER WITNESS in the legislative bribery examination being conducted at Lansing, Mich., Maj. Charles F. Hemans, former University of Michigan regent and an admitted lobbyist, now in the Army, is pictured as he testified before Judge Leland W. Carr's hearing into charges of graft conspiracy involving 16 legislators and five businessmen.

Exposing vote-buying and petty chicanery in the state legislature, named legislators he bribed at the 1939 session in connection with small loan bills. The ex-lobbyist later told newsmen that "I'm not a reformer. But there's a moral to this thing—and that is that we clean Lansing up and keep it clean."

to train men to go along with them into the field of battle to see that they are kept running.

The same is true of artillery and every other type of weapon. That is why the Anzio beachhead has to maintain machine shops, repair garages, plus a large number of trained ordnance men to keep the weapons at the front operating. All of this has to be done under the terrific hazard of enemy artillery fire, because Nazi big guns are never out of range.

Paradoxical fact is that the men responsible for the good job being done by ordnance is a former Navy man. He is hard-hitting Major General Levin Campbell, Chief of Ordnance, who graduated from Annapolis but later joined the Coast Artillery and has been in the Army ever since.

It was Campbell who decentralized the somewhat moribund Ordnance Department shortly after Pearl Harbor, moving ammunition to St. Louis, automotive vehicles to Detroit, safety and security to Chicago, artillery carriages to Rock Island, Ill., and getting things away from Washington where, as he says, "People are always breathing down your neck."

It was Campbell who cleared the decks for the famous bazooka anti-tank gun. Though he has been criticized for not developing an airplane rocket gun similar to the German weapon, it was really General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the Air Forces, who failed to take action on the airplane rocket gun when its feasibility was proposed several years ago by Arnold's arch-critic, Major Severisky.

Actually, the Ordnance Department has to be guided by what the fighting services want. "They never get credit for the new inventions they develop," according to Assistant Secretary of War McCloy, "but if they ever miss one, they catch hell."

OPA POLITICS

The last Iowa Democrat to run for re-election to the U. S. Senate, charming Clyde Herring, was defeated partly because the Republicans were in charge of OPA machinery in the State.

Though Senator Guy Gillette, after a period of indecision, has now announced that he will not seek re-election, up until last week he and his cohorts apparently were taking precautions not to run the same OPA risks as Senator Herring.

A staunch Democratic politician has just been placed in charge of all OPA administration not only for Iowa but also for Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, and North and South Dakota.

He is Rae Walters of Harlan, Iowa, a grain and feed merchant.

He replaces ex-Congressman McKee, who recently resigned to become Midwest political leader for the CIO.

Walters, former Des Moines OPA district director, doubtless has many excellent qualifications. However, the manner of his appointment was peculiar. OPA regional administrators are supposed to be taken from the top of a Civil Service list. There were fifty-six names on the list, of which seven men at the top were considered qualified. Walters' name was well down the list, among the forty-nine considered unqualified because of lack of experience.

Among those at the top were Alex Elson, OPA regional attorney and acting administrator for the Chicago region; Frank Marsh, who recently resigned as Deputy Administrator for Field Operations; Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago OPA district director and the choice of Mayor Kelly. In the past, Chicago has picked the regional administrator because there

WOMAN CHARGED WITH HARBORING SOLDIER

WASHINGTON, March 13—A 23-year-old mother of two small children, wife of a soldier overseas, was scheduled to be arraigned today on the charge of harboring an army deserter in a "foxhole" under the floor of her apartment in the southeast section of the capital.

The woman, Mrs. Doris E. Bender, who was released on $1,000 bond following her arrest Saturday night, denied she knew the soldier was hiding in the pit, a three-foot storage space under the closet floor.

Military authorities identified the soldier as Pvt. Frank W. Collins and said he was a deserter from Bradley Field, Conn.

ORCHARD MEN SOON TO START SPRING SPRAYS

Pest control in Ohio orchards should begin with the dormant spray which is most effective if applied when apple buds are in the green tip stage; and extension specialists at Ohio State university recommend the application of 3 or 4 percent lubricating oil emulsion on apples and plums. Bordeaux mixture should be used on peaches, and sour cherries will not need a dormant spray.

The dormant spray is a control for European red mite, San Jose scale, apple red bug, peach leaf curl, and for rosy aphids of apples provided a toxicant is added to the oil spray. One precaution to be observed with oil spray is to apply them only when the air temperature is 40 degrees or higher.

Some commercial miscible oils are off the market this Spring, but the oils used for making tank mixed lubricating oil emulsion with bordeaux, goulac, or blood albumin are available. Cost of these materials is less than miscible oils for growers with large orchards.

To protect peaches from red mite, scale, and leaf curl, the specialists say to use 6-8-10 bordeaux and to add six and one-fourth gallons of lime-sulphur to each 100 gallons of bordeaux if the spray is intended only for leaf curl control. The peach buds should be completely dormant when this leaf curl spray is applied.

Timeliness in application and thoroughness in covering the trees with spray material are very important factors in orchard pest and disease control. Ohio county agricultural agents can supply a bulletin which gives detailed directions for using sprays and dusts for protecting orchards throughout the season.

STEELEY YOUTH HURT IN SCOOTER ACCIDENT

Losing control of the motor-bike on which he was riding, George Steeley, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Steeley of Washington township, suffered fractures of both bones of his right leg, just above the ankle, when the scooter crashed into the curb in front of the residence of Frank Lynch, South Court street, Sunday about 8 p. m.

The youth, a junior in Washington township high school, said that the light went out on the motor-bike as he was ready to make a turn from South Court street into East Union street, causing him temporarily to lose control of the machine.

He was removed to Berger hospital in the Deffenbaugh invalid car and remains there for observation and treatment.

CITY, COUNTY WIN RECOGNITION FOR BLOOD DONORS

Circleville and Pickaway county came in for a share of praise today as word was received that the Columbus Blood Donor Service would be awarded the Army and Navy "E" flag at a ceremony Friday evening in the Memorial building there.

The Columbus unit has visited the city five times, receiving about 1,600 pints of blood. The last visit ended last Friday when 363 men and women made contributions.

At the Columbus ceremony, Col. Paul A. Robinson, representing the Surgeon General's Office, will award the flag to workers who have served the greatest number of hours in the work. They will receive it on behalf of other workers and all persons who have made blood contributions.

Governor John E. Bricker, in praising the efforts of the Blood Center, said in part:

"I wish to extend my congratulations and my appreciation to the citizens of this community. The strength of our people lies in their willingness to voluntarily join in this and other efforts so vital to the prosecution of the war. All who have had a part should know that they have not only saved lives but contributed greatly to the cause of freedom."

SOURS ENVISIONS NEED FOR NEW HIGHWAY SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13—State Highway Director Hal G. Sours contended today that Ohio is a great industrial state and the need for modern and adequate highways to feed these vast and wide-spread industrial areas is obvious.

"Normal traffic plus the heavy war-time movement of materials has imposed a severe burden on Ohio's arterial highways," Sours told the House Road Committee at Washington, D. C.

Asserting that there is an immediate need for the reconstruction and modernizing on many of the state's truck line routes, Sours said, "progress has been made in developing highway improvements on the trunk line system, but the deferment of needed improvements during the war period combined with the destructive effects of heavy hauling, has seriously damaged many highway routes."

"The need for urban development," Sours said, "the continuing of our main highways through municipalities, the location and construction of express ways in the large cities, together with principal feeders, is obviously great in a state like Ohio with so many urban unities."

High School Pupils Open Red Cross War Fund Drive

CASH RAISING EVENTS BEGUN BY COMMITTEE

Basketball Tournament And Girl Reserve Dance Are Features

CAMPAIN ON TWO WEEKS

Talks Boosting Red Cross Scheduled For Each Program

Circleville high school Monday went all out in behalf of the Red Cross War Fund, opening a program that will continue for two weeks and has for its primary purpose the raising of cash.

Monday afternoon the Hi-Y showed motion pictures before a large assembly that contributed toward the War Fund. Monday afternoon was to see the opening action in the annual Stogie basketball tournament with an admission charge. The tournament will continue Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tuesday afternoon the Junior Girl Reserves will stage a dance at the high school. The high school band will present a concert for grade school pupils Wednesday and another concert for the high school pupils Thursday afternoon. A concert will be given for the general public Thursday evening.

None of the events slated for this week is free. Brief talks boosting the Red Cross and urging liberal contributions to the War Fund will be made on each program.

School pupils of the city are carrying the Red Cross message into their homes and are expected to be important factors in the success of the campaign now being conducted in the city.

Miss Mary Virginia Crites is director of the Red Cross program in all the city schools and is assisted by John Boggs and Howard Moore, of the Stogie club, Ned C. Stout and Mark Schumm, of the Hi-Y, Elizabeth Downing and Maxine Friedmar, of the Senior Girl Reserves, and Ann Curtin and Ann Snider, of the Junior Girl Reserves.

PICKAWAY ONE OF 41 COUNTIES IN PATROL AREA

Pickaway is one of 41 counties in Central Ohio which will be patrolled by military police personnel under supervision of the area provost marshal. Fifth Service Command headquarters at Fort Hayes disclosed today.

FARM SUPPLY PICTURE GROWS SOME BRIGHTER

Reports on the available supplies needed for agricultural production are more encouraging to Pickaway county farmers than similar reports a year ago. A greater amount of such supplies as fertilizer, lime, and spray materials will mean little unless farmers remember that the goods have to be ordered early enough to get through the transportation bottle neck.

More new tractors will be sold to farmers than in 1943, but the supply will not be nearly sufficient to meet demands so most heavy farm equipment still will be rationed through county war boards to go to farmers where its use will produce the most food. More haying and harvesting equipment will be on the market but all orders cannot be filled.

The supply of wire fencing will be back to almost prewar quantities, although it will be easier in 1944 to buy barbed wire and woven wire than it will be to find poultry netting. There will be sufficient dairy and poultry equipment available to meet all reasonable demands.

Plenty of fertilizer can be made but labor and transportation facilities prevent its being moved rapidly to farms. Most chemicals used for control of insects and plant diseases will be available in adequate amounts if ordered early. Rotenone and pyrethrum supplies for agricultural uses will be scarcer than in 1943.

Truck transportation of farm supplies and of farm products will become more and more of a problem. Constant care of present trucks and tires will be required to prevent a disastrous breakdown in highway freighting.

Tip-off on how this was done may be the fact that Walters is the buddy of Jake More, Democratic chairman for Iowa. They grew up together in the same town. Also, it is significant that Senator Gillette, not OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, announced Walters' appointment.

Note—Morale in the Chicago office was shot as a result of Walters' appointment. However, he has been getting to work at 7:30 a. m. and seems to be making things move.

STEELEY YOUTH HURT IN SCOOTER ACCIDENT

Losing control of the motor-bike on which he was riding, George Steeley, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Steeley of Washington township, suffered fractures of both bones of his right leg, just above the ankle, when the scooter crashed into the curb in front of the residence of Frank Lynch, South Court street, Sunday about 8 p. m.

The youth, a junior in Washington township high school, said that the light went out on the motor-bike as he was ready to make a turn from South Court street into East Union street, causing him temporarily to lose control of the machine.

He was removed to Berger hospital in the Deffenbaugh invalid car and remains there for observation and treatment.

CITY, COUNTY WIN RECOGNITION FOR BLOOD DONORS

Circleville and Pickaway county came in for a share of praise today as word was received that the Columbus Blood Donor Service would be awarded the Army and Navy "E" flag at a ceremony Friday evening in the Memorial Building there.

The Columbus unit has visited the city five times, receiving about 1,600 pints of blood. The last visit ended last Friday when 363 men and women made contributions.

At the Columbus ceremony, Col. Paul A. Robinson, representing the Surgeon General's Office, will award the flag to workers who have served the greatest number of hours in the work. They will receive it on behalf of other workers and all persons who have made blood contributions.

Governor John E. Bricker, in praising the efforts of the Blood Center, said in part:

"I wish to extend my congratulations and my appreciation to the citizens of this community. The strength of our people lies in their willingness to voluntarily join in this and other efforts so vital to the prosecution of the war. All who have had a part should know that they have not only saved lives but contributed greatly to the cause of freedom."

CHILD KILLED BY AUTO

COLUMBUS, March 13—Funeral arrangements were completed today for Shirley Ann Freeman, 6-year-old daughter of Seaman and Mrs. Denver C. Freeman, of (73 N. Eureka ave.) Columbus who was struck and killed by an auto after she alighted from a bus at Broad street and Brinker ave.

SOURS ENVISIONS NEED FOR NEW HIGHWAY SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13—State Highway Director Hal G. Sours contended today that Ohio is a great industrial state and the need for modern and adequate highways to feed these vast and wide-spread industrial areas is obvious.

"Normal traffic plus the heavy war-time movement of materials has imposed a severe burden on Ohio's arterial highways," Sours told the House Road Committee at Washington, D. C.

Asserting that there is an immediate need for the reconstruction and modernizing on many of the state's truck line routes, Sours said, "progress has been made in developing highway improvements on the trunk line system, but the deferment of needed improvements during the war period combined with the destructive effects of heavy hauling, has seriously damaged many highway routes."

"The need for urban development," Sours said, "the continuing of our main highways through municipalities, the location and construction of express ways in the large cities, together with principal feeders, is obviously great in a state like Ohio with so many urban units."

DEATH CLAIMS UNCLE OF LOCAL RESIDENTS

George W. Renick, Lynchburg, Ohio, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Renick, died Sunday at 2 a. m. in the Chillicothe city hospital. He was an uncle of N. Turney Weldon of South Court street and Mrs. Thomas D. Harman, West Mount street. He had many friends in this community.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 1 p. m. in Lynchburg with burial in Chillicothe cemetery.

STATEMENT FROM A GERMAN PRISONER OF WAR

WHEN ASKED which side he thought would win the War, a German officer captured at Salerno made the following statement:

"This is one war America will not win, because America is too weak at home. Your people are too far away—their hearts are not in it. They will tire—they do not have the unshakable determination to conquer that fills every man and woman of the German Reich!"

When you're asked to buy more War Bonds and to keep on buying more War Bonds—remember what that German officer said.

Let's all KEEP BACKING THE ATTACK!
